Slashed and Stabbed, Pretty Stenographer Found Dying in Kirkwood Street; Husband Is Sought

24-Year-Old Daughter Of Pastor Is Slain

Drug Store Cowlorker of Hunted Mate Held for Questioning.

Bleeding from a slashed throat and a dozen stab wounds in the body, Mrs. Dorothy Bryant Martin, pretty 24-year-old stenographer, was found dying on Woodbine avenue, N. E., near Wade avenue, early last night and police immediately began a search for her estranged husband, Charles, 24, a soda clerk, who only the day before had sent her a Valentine box of candy.

Held in DeKalb county jail for questioning was Hugo Fischer, employee of the drug store at Spring and Mitchell streets at which Martin worked. Appearing at the scene shortly after the police arrived, he told officers that he and Martin had trailed Mrs. Martin from Pryor and Alabama streets, where she boarded a street car, to within a block of where the slaying occurred.

Martin, he said, got out of the car at Wade and Boulevard drive, and he had driven on up Wade avenue and had parked to wait until Martin returned. While waiting, he said, he heard a scream, and had investigated to find Mrs. Martin lying in the street. Her husband had disappeared.

Drinking Heavily.

Both he and Martin had been drinking heavily after leaving the store about 2 o'clock in the afternoon, he told police, and Martin was driving his car.

W. D. Fricks, of 48 Wyman street, N. E., told officers that he was driving on Woodbine street about 6 o'clock when he saw Mrs. Martin stagger onto Woodbine from the direction of the Wade street car stop. She was streaming blood, he said, and as he halted his car, she fell behind it. He summoned an ambulance, but Mrs. Martin was dead when the Grady doctor arrived.

A Negro listed as Bill Bailey, 51, of 1548 Morona street, told officers he heard the stenographer scream, and saw a man running into a woods near the scene.

Layden Quits Notre Dame Job To Become Pro Football Czar

'Irish' Coach To Receive $20,000 Per Year Under Contract.

CHICAGO, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Elmer Layden resigned today as head football coach and athletic director at Notre Dame to accept a five-year contract as commissioner of professional football. The contract, effective March 1, calls for an annual salary of $20,000. Layden's contract at Notre Dame expired last Saturday.

His duties as boss of the National Football League and several minor circuits will be comparable to those of Kenesaw M. Landis, czar of baseball.

In accepting the new post, Layden is leaving one of the best coaching positions in the collegiate sports world. The choice of his successor was a matter of wide conjecture, especially in view of the suddenness of Layden's departure.

The deal by which the rapidly growing professional sport obtained Layden was completed two days ago.

ELMER LAYDEN

Club owners of the National Football League, which sponsored the hiring of a commissioner, met here several weeks ago to consider several persons for the job, but Layden had not been mentioned previously as a possibility.

An all-American star as one of the famed "Four Horsemen" of Notre Dame in the early twenties, Layden became head coach there in 1934. In seven years his Irish eleven won 46 games and lost only 14.

Before going to Notre Dame, the 37-year-old mentor coached at Columbia College, Dubuque, Iowa, and Duquesne University at Pittsburgh.

"I naturally am very happy that the club owners of the league have picked me to direct their organization," Layden said. "The future welfare of my family influenced my decision."

"The National league is the fastest growing institution in American sport. I hope and believe I can be helpful in the further development of the organization. We shall continue to safeguard the status of intercollegiate football. There is a place for both games."

Club owners had said previously that the office of league president, now held by Carl Storck, Dayton, Ohio, would not be affected by the creation of the commissioner post. The league is expected to define the duties of both Layden and Storck at its annual April meeting in Chicago.

Church Body Plans City-Wide Drive in April

Simultaneous Meetings in All Denominations To Be Conducted.

Atlanta's revitalized and vigorous Christian Council met yesterday and adopted plans for a period of simultaneous metropolitan area denominational evangelistic services.

These plans, the most ambitious religious revival plans in the city's history, call for simultaneous meetings for a period April 13 through 27. There will be daily meetings, organizations of young people's choirs, and all work will be carried on through general plans drawn up by the council, leaders pointed out.

Meetings, however, will be denominational, with each church asked to carry on its own evangelistic services with its own workers, they said.

All will join in a religious cen-

House Debates on Aid Measure; Passage by 100 Votes Predicted

Fish Leads Opposition, Says Bill Will Lead United States Into War; Party Lines To Split on Vote.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—(AP)—With administration leaders predicting approval by a margin of at least 100 votes, the lease-lend bill was brought to the house floor today to be heatedly denounced as a step toward war and dictatorship, and warmly defended as a measure to keep the horrors of conflict away from American shores.

As the house proceeded through the first hours of three days of general debate on the measure, Representative Fish, Republican, New York, took the leadership of the opposition. He asserted enactment of the bill would plunge the United States into war in Europe and Asia within six months and bring a dictatorship at home.

It was apparent, however, that party lines would be split on the final vote. After Chairman Bloom, Democrat, New York, of the foreign affairs committee, in reply to Fish, declared the legislation would keep war away from the United States, Representative Coffey, Democrat, Nebraska, asserted that it was "a war measure—not a defense measure."

For the most part, the debate followed the general lines of the argument which has raged since the measure was first proposed. After the three days of general debate on the bill, ending Wednesday, proposed amendments will be in order.

While the house debated the bill, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee heard Norman Thomas, Socialist leader, and Philip La Follette, Republican, Wisconsin.

Council To Sift Charge Against Prison Official

H. G. Gibson Accused of Misfeasance and Malfeasance.

Nine charges of alleged misfeasance and malfeasance in office were filed yesterday against H. G. Gibson, superintendent of the city prison farm, and city council authorized Mayor LeCraw to appoint a special council committee to investigate the charges and recommend to council whether or not it should proceed with impeachment demands made by Councilman George B. Lyle, chairman of the public works and prison committee.

The mayor said he will study the papers and may name the committee today.

Major complaints in Lyle's charges, which he said were based on affidavits, are that Gibson illegally used $303.15 of city money collected by him; that he illegally worked city forces on private property belonging to Dr. Ralph Akin, Carey Cook, R. G. Harrison and B. B. Crane; that he gave away city property illegally and that he caused to be destroyed city property valued at $245.

Lyle insisted that the council itself hear the impeachment demand without the formality of referring it to a special committee, but the council voted nine to seven to order a committee probe first.

Bill To Permit Horse Racing Before House

Act Proposed to Regain Revenue Lost on Exemptions.

By LUKE GREENE.

One of the big questions in political circles last night was what attitude administration leaders in the general assembly will take toward a bill proposing the legalization of horse and dog racing in Georgia introduced in the house of representatives yesterday by Representative Roscoe Pickett Jr., of Pickens.

Pickett said one of his principal objectives in seeking such a law was to reimburse the counties for the losses forced on them by the homestead exemption law. He estimates the state would derive approximately $2,000,000 annually from legalized racing.

May Be 'Feeler.'

There were some indications that the Talmadge leaders might be sending up the bill as a "trial balloon" without the administration label to find out just what the public reaction would be.

If it should not blow up too great a storm of opposition, it was held possible the administration might give the bill its backing because Governor Talmadge is known to be anxious for some plan to recoup the counties for the homestead exemption losses.

Pickett stressed the fact that his bill provides for a referendum in each county to determine whether racing would be permitted. The taxes derived from the racing, however, would be divided among all the counties.

Leaders Quiet.

Because of the sharp losses to small counties, there have been intimations that an attempt might be made to repeal the homestead exemption law, but Pickett says his bill would make such a move unnecessary.

Administration leaders were reticent to talk about the possible outcome of the bill following its introduction yesterday. Representative W. H. Lovett, of Laurens, explained that the administration is concentrating its attention on passing the bills which are vital to the Talmadge

Cooking School Opens Today; Hundreds Expected To Attend

Mrs. Baldrige To Teach Ultra-Modern Kitchen Technique.

Hundreds of men and women of Atlanta and neighboring towns will attend the ultra-modern free cooking school which begins at 9 o'clock this morning at the Erlanger theater with Mrs. Katharine Baldrige, nationally known home economics expert, conducting the classes.

The doors of the theater will open at 8:30 o'clock and admission is free for each of the four sessions, which will continue through Friday morning. The Constitution-sponsored school has been enthusiastically received and numerous Atlanta merchants are co-operating to make this the largest and most completely equipped cooking school ever to be held in Atlanta.

The program will begin with an elaborate fashion show presented by Edna Lee, of Regenstein's

Petain Expected To Return Laval

By the Associated Press.

VICHY, France, Feb. 3.—French Navy Minister Admiral Jean Darlan conferred with Pierre Laval for several hours today in Paris negotiations aimed at meeting German demands that the former vice president of the council be reinstated in Marshal Petain's government.

Admiral Darlan was expected to return shortly with Laval or bearing a report of Laval's conditions for reentering the government from which he was ousted in December.

Friends of Laval said he expected to receive an important portfolio, possibly the foreign ministry, and declared Laval took the position that if he returns he should be placed in full charge of Franco-German negotiations and with an understanding that there would be no divergence in opinion on what constitutes "collaboration."

French political circles considered it unlikely that questions of empire naval bases for the Axis powers was under immediate consideration, but believed Darlan sought to settle Laval's position now and "create a favorable atmosphere" for the broader questions of French-German relations.

They considered it likely that important changes would be made as a result of Admiral Darlan's trip with possibly a triumvirate of ministers—Admiral Darlan, war minister, General Charles Huntziger, and Laval—exercising real powers under Petain.

Besides the foreign ministry, Laval is believed to want control of all the information services as well as the police. It is believed he also wants changes made in the national council.

United States Ambassador Admiral William D. Leahy talked for an hour with Foreign Minister Pierre-Etienne Flandin late today. Leahy said that he had talked on a "wide variety" of subjects.

RAF Strikes All Way to Border of French Tunisia.

CAIRO, Egypt, Feb. 3.—(AP)—British imperial forces, already gathering strength for an assault on the key concentration of Italian troops in Bengasi, Libya, today hurled an aerial offensive 300 miles further west with heavy bombing of an airdrome and railway center south and west of Tripoli—almost to the border of French Tunisia.

Meanwhile, other British forces were reported by the middle east command to be driving a wedge into the heart of Italian Eritrea to the east, occupying Barentu, with the Fascist troops retreating under the pounding of land and air attacks.

So great is the rout of Italians in East Africa, British sources said, that the Fascists have taken to the bush and jungle with the British close behind them.

The bulk of the troops holding interior posts in Ethiopia, Eritrea and Italian Somaliland was pictured as still intact, though constantly attacked by the RAF and, in Ethiopia, harassed by natives. Nowhere along the frontiers of these Italian colonies was there any resistance left, the British said.

The terrain is so rugged that movement of troops and supplies in organized fashion is nearly impossible, the British said, and the mountains abound with wild animals.

Farther south, an Italian column which was retreating toward Gondar, Ethiopia, was said to be fighting against constant sniping

Machineguns Are Placed At Strategic Points

Army Leave Cancelled; Regime Facing Political Storm.

By the Associated Press.
HAVANA, Feb. 3.—President Fulgencio Batista announced tonight that he had taken personal command of the army, navy, and national police forces, shortly after army guards threw up sandbags at strategic points inside the presidential palace and mounted machineguns at the entrances.

Batista made the announcement at 11:10 p. m. that he had accepted the resignations of Colonel Jose E. Pedraza, chief of the army; Lieutenant Colonel Angel A. Gonzalez, navy commander-in-chief, and Colonel Bernardo Garcia, former national police chief.

Colonel Pedraza had only been appointed head of the national police force two days ago in succession to Colonel Garcia.

Faces Political Storm.
Well-informed circles said Batista's government was facing a political storm.

During the day the President had held several conferences with high army officers, but the subjects discussed were not revealed. In taking charge of all Cuban armed forces, the President announced that the attitudes of the three men whom he replaced were considered openly seditious.

President Batista personally took charge of the armed forces at 11 p. m. at Camp Columbia.

An order was broadcast to all service men who were away from home to return immediately to their homes.

Everything Tranquil.
Just before midnight, President Batista announced from army headquarters at Camp Columbia that complete tranquillity was reported throughout the island.

Cuba's strong man President, Fulgencio Batista, is no stranger to violence, though he has experienced little more than the customary political ferment since he sprang to fame by leading the classic "revolt of the six sergeants" on September 4, 1933.

On that day, Sergeant Batista, who had become known merely as the best stenographer on the Cuban Army, organized the non-commissioned officers and enlisted men behind him in a drive that ousted the army's officers and sent President Carlos Manuel de Cespedes packing.

It was acknowledged that at any time from that date Batista could have made himself President of Cuba. Instead, he chose to bide his time for more than six years, remaining as head of the nation's armed forces and the strong man behind the political scenes, keeping Cuba in comparative order.

Senate Votes 350 Millions For New Ships

200 Steel Cargo Vessels of 7,500 Tons Each Are Proposed.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—(AP)—The senate voted today for a $350,000,000 emergency shipbuilding program.

Passed without a record vote, the measure carried $313,500,000 in new appropriations to be used with $36,500,000 available from other sources in building 200 steel cargo vessels as well as new shipbuilding facilities.

The chamber accepted an amendment, requested by the Maritime Commission, to provide $65,000,000 of additional contract authority to the commission's regular ship program. The house must concur in this and other amendments before legislative action is completed.

Wage-Hour Act Upheld by U. S. Supreme Court

All Phases of Law Ruled Constitutional After Dual Challenge.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—(AP)—A sweeping decision of the supreme court today upheld the constitutionality of the wage-hour law in all its phases and went on to overrule a 1918 decision which had denied Congress the right to outlaw child labor.

The action raised speculation as to whether a controversial constitutional amendment, submitted in 1924 but ratified so far by only 28 of the required 36 states, would become a dead issue. This amendment would empower Congress "to limit, regulate, and prohibit the labor of persons under 18 years of age."

To Continue Fight. Officials at the children's bureau said they would continue to press for ratification of the amendment since three-fourths of all child labor is employed in interstate industry, but the court's decision appeared to place at least a large part of this within the control of Congress, along with all child labor in interstate industry. The wage-hour law itself, passed in 1938 and known technically as the fair labor standards act, prohibits the employment of children under 16 in mining and manufacturing and of children under 18 in hazardous occupations, but its chief purposes are to fix minimum wages and maximum working hours for all workers whose products enter interstate commerce.

Another provision of the law, requiring employers to keep records of their employees' wages and hours to prove compliance, also was specifically upheld.

Decision Unanimous. The decision, by Justice Stone, was unanimous. The court became an eight-man tribunal temporarily upon the retirement Saturday of Justice McReynolds, who celebrated his 79th birthday today.

In another far-reaching decision today, by a vote of 5 to 2, the court held that unionists could not be prosecuted for conspiracy to restrain interstate commerce under the Sherman anti-trust law for picketing and boycotting activities resulting from a jurisdictional dispute between two AFL unions at the Anheuser-Busch Brewery in St. Louis.

The majority opinion, by Justice Frankfurter, held that the Clayton and the Norris-LaGuardia anti-injunction acts modified the Sherman law so that a union might freely undertake such activity "so long as a union acts in its self-interest and does not combine with non-labor groups."

Twice Challenged. The wage-hour law was challenged in two cases, involving the F. W. Darby Lumber Company, of Statesboro, Ga., and the Opp Cotton Mills, Inc., of Opp, Ala., the latter being joined by 10 other southern mills and the Southern Cotton Manufacturing Association. The Darby case was decided in 1939 on charges of failing to pay the minimum wage and time and a half for overtime and to keep records. Federal Judge William H. Barrett at Augusta quashed the indictment and held the law unconstitutional on the ground that it regulated manufacture within the states and that manufacture was not interstate commerce.

"While manufacture is not of itself interstate commerce," the supreme court said, "the shipment of manufactured goods interstate is such commerce and the prohibition of such shipment by Congress is indubitably a regulation of the commerce."

Nazi Financial Strength 'Not Affected by War' BERLIN, Feb. 3.—(AP)—German financial strength and money are not affected by the continuation of the war, State Secretary of Finance Fritz Rehnhardt stated today in an article entitled "Eight Years of National Socialist Financial Policy."

Rehnhardt's article, distributed by DNB, German official news agency, said the Reich's income for the financial year 1940-1941 would total about 27,000,000,000 marks, while the country's indebtedness, including tax warrants, today is approximately 71,000,000,000 marks.

Coates Trial In Slaying Set For Tomorrow

Judge John C. Mitchell To Conduct Hearing in Ringgold.

Trial of Charles Coates for the murder of W. Fred Black, Georgia highway patrol corporal, will begin tomorrow at Ringgold, Ga., before Judge John C. Mitchell, of the Cherokee superior court circuit.

Judge Mitchell said he decided against further postponement of the trial when advised that Coates, who had all his toes amputated last week, was in "good physical condition."

Coates was captured in the mountains of east Tennessee December 25, five days after Black was killed when he stopped an automobile to question the driver. Frost bit suffered during the hunt made amputation of the toes necessary, the operation being performed in an Atlanta hospital.

Mitchell said 100 jurors had been summoned for the trial and that he expected no trouble in selecting the jury.

Meanwhile, city detectives questioned Coates about the robbery of a Lincoln, Neb., drug store but Coates refused to make any statement.

The investigation was begun at the request of Lincoln police, who said that the drug store manager had identified Coates, through photographs, as the man who took $80 in cash and a quantity of narcotics from the safe.

Sneak Preview At Fox Tonight

The second of a series of "sneak previews" will be presented tonight at the Fox Theater, Manager Tommy Reed announced last night.

The preview will go on after the final show of "Hudson Bay," starring Paul Muni, at 11 o'clock, he said.

Nearly 5,000 persons attended the first "sneak preview" two weeks ago. "Mr. and Mrs. Smith" was shown.

Mrs. Willis Davis and Sheriff J. C. (Mott) Aldridge yesterday were elected by council to four-year terms on the Carnegie library board from the second and fourth wards, respectively.

Atlanta's $15,000 share of erecting hangars and administration buildings for the 128th Observation Squadron, Georgia National Guard, was pledged by council yesterday. It will be paid as soon as the sum is available, under the resolution.

Harvey H. Hunt yesterday was elected auditor for the city for 1941. His contract price was $5,000, and was $6,500 below the bid of Ham Eason & Company, which has held the auditing post for several years.

Mayor LeCraw's veto to a $2,100 appropriation to help advertise Atlanta was sustained yesterday by council, which also sustained LeCraw in vetoing a resolution calling on Traffic Court Judge Luke S. Arnold to use Charlie O. Murphy, court clerk. Arnold and Murphy have worked out their differences.

Council yesterday advised a petition to establish a liquor store at 1531 Piedmont avenue, Morningside. The action was taken after a large delegation, headed by Dr. Louie D. Newton, pastor of the Druid Hills Baptist church, protested.

Traffic Board Established by City Council

Members Split Over Resolution Involving Personnel Unit.

City Council yesterday approved creation of a 10-member board to tackle Atlanta's traffic problem as outlined by Mayor LeCraw and went on record as being opposed to abolishment of the city's civil service program as proposed by a bill now pending in the general assembly.

The traffic board was established without a dissenting vote, but members of council split two to one in approving a resolution offered by Alderman Ed Gilliam, which directed Fulton and DeKalb county delegations not to approve a charter amendment which would abolish the city personnel board and the personnel department.

Nine of the ten members of the traffic board have been announced as follows by the mayor:

Lawrence L. Cellerstedt, executive vice president of the Citizens & Southern National Bank; Major Clark Howell, editor and publisher of The Atlanta Constitution; Albert Gossett, president of the Atlanta Federation of Trades; George Biggers, vice president and general manager of the Atlanta Journal; Charles H. Jagels, vice president and general manager of Davison-Paxon Company; Alderman G. Dan Bridges, chairman of city council's police committee; Raymond W. Torras, engineer-secretary of the city planning commission; Police Chief Hornsby and the mayor himself.

Serve to December 31. Members' terms will expire December 31 under the ordinance, but may be renewed. LeCraw said he will select a tenth member to represent hotel interests.

Councilman J. Allen Couch, champion of civil service, told council members "employees are rendering better service now than ever before."

"If you are going to change the setup, and create a new political grab-bag, it's all right with me," he added. "I don't know whether my name is Allen Couch or not. What they really mean is they favor it for the other fellow, but just leave the political grab-bag open for me and my friends. I think the personnel department is doing a good job."

Alderman G. Dan Bridges attacked civil service, asking Gilliam how many employees were put to work last year.

"Well, you know last year was a political year and we put a lot of folks to work for the city," Gilliam countered. "That, of course, was the fault of the personnel board. It just hired folks for those jobs we authorized. If anybody is to blame, we are and we should assume our responsibility."

Retain Positions. In connection with attacks on civil service, council declined to abolish the personnel office of the personnel director and refused to reduce the auto allowance of Carl F. Sutherland, personnel director, from $30 to $15 a month.

Council referred to the ordinance and legislation committee proposals to ask the legislature to establish a metropolitan hospital authority to build a new Grady hospital and Battle Hill sanatorium and to consolidate the Albert Steiner cancer clinic under the management of the Grady hospital board of trustees.

The council also asked the legislature to approve the following charter amendments:

1. Establishment of a civil service and tenure of office for all department heads not now under civil service.
2. Require the city to contribute $600 to police pension funds in lieu of the present law requiring that 25 per cent of all fines and costs be allocated for that purpose.
3. Provide that two-thirds of city council must vote favorably to impeach a department head.
4. Make mandatory an affidavit by solicitors for names to petitions and recalls that the solicitor saw the person in the petition before said petition can be used to call an election to initiate legislation or to recall a city officer.
5. Provide 30 days sick leave a year for policemen, putting them on the same status as the firemen's head.
6. Make optional with supervising committees, and the treasurer's head, suspension of any indicted city employee.

BIG INCREASE REPORTED. CHICAGO, Feb. 3.—(AP)—United Air Lines reported today 222,331,118 passenger miles flown in 1940, a gain of almost 50 per cent over its total of 148,954,288 in 1939.

Records in the files of the DeKalb county police disclosed that a warrant for assault and battery had been sworn out against Martin by the girl's father in March of last year, and a peace warrant had been sworn out for him on December 19.

Fischer, who gave his address as 123 East Lake terrace, told officers that Martin had sent his wife a Valentine box of candy Sunday.

Martin was described by police as being 5 feet 10 and weighing 160 pounds. He was dressed in gray trousers and a brown coat and was hatless, they said.

RAF Spitfire Blasts Heinkel To Bits at Point-Blank Range

LONDON, Feb. 3.—(AP)—A Spitfire fighter plane, with its cannon roaring at point-blank range, blew a Heinkel bomber to bits over the Thames estuary this afternoon.

"It was like having a dustbin emptied into your face," the 21-year-old Spitfire pilot said after diving perilously through the hail of debris.

The flyer said he sighted the Heinkel at 3,000 feet, while cruising 1,000 feet below.

Climbing steeply, he said he "crept to within 50 yards of the bomber. Then I opened fire. The result was amazing. I hadn't given him more than a two-second burst when pieces of the bomber flew off like chips from a log and so blinded me I had to stop firing and dodge out of the way."

He described how the bomber bailed out and said he had a long look at the Heinkel as it plummeted to earth with "some terrific holes in it."

In his excitement, the RAF pilot left his radio transmitter turned on and listeners at his base plainly heard him shout, "I've got him! I've got him!"

Then they heard only the drumming of the powerful Merlin engine for moments until suddenly the Spitfire pilot exclaimed, "Hell's bells—he's gone all to pieces!"

Traffic Survey Italy Is Faced Abolished; 153 Aides Dropped Simpson Says

destroyed military stores at Tepelini, last Italian-held pivot of the southern and south central defense line in Albania. Coupled with Greek claims of having swept the foe off the twin mountain spurs sparring 10 miles northward from the great east-west Viosa river gorge, these reports indicate early collapse of the whole Italian southern front.

Abandonment of Tepelini and the Viosa river line running northward from that point toward the coast would mean certain Italian evacuation also of the Adriatic port of Valona. It would mean, moreover, a desperate race northward by the retreating Fascist armies across the coastal plain of central Albania to escape being cut off by encircling Greek columns already 10 miles or more up the Klisura-Berat road on their flank and rear.

Yugoslavian advisers report that Greek-British submarines and bombers are reaching far up the Adriatic to cut Italy's sea communications with Albania. Laden Italian troopships carrying reinforcements to the Albanian front have been hit, with heavy casualties, these Yugoslavian accounts say. They also report Italian craft taking refuge in Yugoslavian waters.

Aside from its strictly military aspects, a new crisis for Italy in Albania could have important psychological results in theaters far removed from that scene of conflict. A new Italian disaster so close to home, coming on top of cumulative British successes against Fascist forces in North and East Africa, might turn the scale in Britain's favor in French Africa.

Certainly developments in Albania and Africa are calculated to stiffen Balkan resistance to German diplomatic pressure or force politics. They are also apt to affect similarly the course of Franco-German "co-operation" negotiations, which even Berlin admits are at a tense stage.

With the British widening their African victories, and the Greeks and British apparently hoping for a quick kill against Italy in Albania, any Berlin move against Pétain's regime in France might easily prompt General Weygand to reverse his stand, or be swept aside by pro-British sentiment in French Africa. That is what Berlin and Rome most fear.

Both Fischer and Martin, according to C. D. Hancock, 840 Hemphill avenue, manager of the store, had quit their jobs yesterday afternoon.

Records in the files of the DeKalb county police disclosed that a warrant for assault and battery had been sworn out against Martin by the girl's father in March of last year, and a peace warrant had been sworn out for him on December 19.

Records in the files of the DeKalb county police disclosed that a warrant for assault and battery had been sworn out against Martin by the girl's father in March of last year, and a peace warrant had been sworn out for him on December 19.

Fischer, who gave his address as 123 East Lake terrace, told officers that Martin had sent his wife a Valentine box of candy Sunday.

Martin was described by police as being 5 feet 10 and weighing 160 pounds. He was dressed in gray trousers and a brown coat and was hatless, they said.

Mrs. Roosevelt Breaks With Youth Congress

First Lady Disapproves of Opposition to Selective Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—(UP) Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt today broke with the American Youth Congress which last year she defended vigorously against charges by the Dies committee that it was a "Communist-front" organization.

She revealed at a press conference that she had rejected an invitation to take part in the organization's meeting here next week because she feels that its opposition to conscription and short-of-war aid to Great Britain is contrary to the best interests of democracy.

Likewise, she said that while she has not been convinced that the congress is dominated by Communists, she recognized that "certain" of its members are Communists and that others are influenced by this group.

Simultaneously, the Youth Congress issued a statement asserting that it has "divorced" the first lady, because "she no longer believes with us that the first line of defense of our country is a free, unregulated and happy youth, guaranteed the right to education, vocational training and jobs."

Defense Plants Get 50 Million For Expansion

Aircraft and Military Supplies To Be Made in New Factories.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—(AP)—The War Department announced today approval by the National Defense Commission of approximately $50,000,000 worth of contracts for additional plant facilities to manufacture aircraft and other military supplies.

The largest of these was with the Buick motor division of the General Motors Corporation at Melrose Center, near LaGrange, Ill. This covered a total of $37,675,150 for plant and equipment. Of this sum, $6,600,000 was for machinery and equipment and the remaining $31,075,150 apparently for plant expansion. The project is for the manufacture of Pratt & Whitney airplane engines.

The new Buick facilities would be constructed and equipped, the War Department said, under the terms of defense plant corporation agreements of lease developed jointly by the RFC and the War and Navy Departments. Funds would be provided by the defense plant corporation, it was said, and the War Department agreed to reimburse that government corporation for a portion of that part of the cost for which the defense plant corporation would not be reimbursed through rental to be received from the manufacturer.

Under the terms of the agreement, title to the plant and equipment will remain in the defense plant corporation. However, at the end of five years the manufacturer will have the option to purchase the property at cost less some prearranged rate of depreciation or, alternatively, at some negotiated sum.

Similar agreements were involved in the other contracts announced by the department: Reynolds Metal Company, Louisville, $2,546,111 for additional facilities and equipment for the manufacture of aircraft and other military supplies.

Curtiss propeller division of the Curtiss-Wright Corporation, $7,099,850 at Indianapolis and $1,769,600 at Caldwell, N. J. These contracts cover additional machinery and equipment for the manufacture of airplane propellers. Negotiations for an additional expansion at Pittsburgh, are still pending, the department said.

$600 and a secretary-treasurer, $1,800.

The bill specifies that no races shall be held on Sunday and that minors would be barred. Licenses could be revoked for violations.

Taxes derived from such races would consist of 3 per cent of the total contributions to all pari-mutuel pools, 20 per cent of the price charged for admissions, and 10 cents on each free pass.

Five per cent of the gross monthly receipts would be retained for salaries but the rest would be turned over to the state for distribution to the counties.

"This money will be divided into 159 equal parts and the same amount will be sent to each and every county in the state," Pickett said. "This will amount to approximately $15,000 for each county annually."

The Pickett bill was referred to the general judiciary committee No. 2.

Representative Fred Tappan Jr.,

of Greene county, introduced a bill proposing to slash the salaries of members of the Prison Commission from $5,000 to $3,500 per year and to make the governor and highway chairman ex-officio members.

Under a resolution adopted in the house, R. G. LeTourneau, industrialist and religious leader, will be permitted to address the legislative body at 11 o'clock next Monday.

Missing Army Bomber Found After 2 Weeks

Crew of Seven Killed as Craft Crashed Into Mountain.

MORTON, Wash., Feb. 3.—(UP)—A Army bomber which disappeared in flight with seven men on January 16 was shattered when it hit a rock cliff 50 miles from the takeoff point, it was announced officially tonight.

(Colonel William H. Crom, commandant of McChord Field, Tacoma, said the wreckage was found near Bremer, seven miles west of here, by two woodsmen who sought it for a week to claim a $1,000 reward posted by relatives of the plane crew.)

No sign of life was seen about the wreckage, which was strewn over a wide area, and it was believed all aboard were killed instantly. Buzzards hovered over the scene.

The birds attracted the discoverers, Harry Studhalter and Tom Harper, operators of a tie mill at Bremer. Through field glasses they sighted the wreckage of the plane eight miles distant on the rocks at an elevation of about 4,800 feet.

Disaster overtook the plane in the foothills of snow-covered Mt. Rainier, almost due south of McChord Field as it flew toward California for bombing practice on Muroc Dry Lake. (The ship carried no explosives). The bomber never reported by radio after its takeoff, and crashed in perhaps 30 minutes.

Aboard the craft at the time of its disappearance were:

First Lieutenant R. M. Krumm, pilot, Boise, Idaho; Second Lieutenant C. T. Nielsen, co-pilot, Eau Claire, Wis.; Second Lieutenant J. F. Geis, navigator, Seattle; First Lieutenant L. E. Mackay, passenger, Lincoln, Neb.; Sergeant H. A. Davis, technical engineer, Tacoma; L. H. Neitling, radio operator, Seio, Ore., and P. L. Maas, bombardier, Quincy, Ill.

Atlantans Injured When Auto Skids

COCHRAN, Ga., Feb. 3.—(AP)—Mrs. R. T. Carroll and Mrs. E. H. Bradley, both of Atlanta, were injured one mile north of here today when an automobile in which they were riding skidded.

They were taken to the Coleman sanitarium in Eastman for treatment. Physicians said the nature of their injuries was undetermined.

Georgia's week-end traffic fatality toll mounted to eight yesterday with the reported deaths of Roy Stubbs, 12, hit by an automobile three miles north of Ashburn, and Ed Thomas, 24, victim of an auto-truck collision on the Cairo-Thomastown highway.

5 Stratoliners May Be Bought By the British

Huge Planes Would Be Useful for Speedy Ferrying of Pilots.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—(AP)—British officials are considering the purchase of five 33-passenger stratoliners from Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., aviation circles said today.

Such ships, these circles said, would be useful in ferrying back to this country pilots engaged in flying planes from Canada to England.

Aviation circles expressed belief the planes, when stripped of devices for passenger comfort, would be capable of carrying more than 50 passengers each, and could make the trans-Atlantic crossing in about 12 hours.

The four-motored planes have a wing span of 107 feet and are 74 feet long. Each has a gross weight of 45,000 pounds and a flying range of 3,000 miles.

U. S. Mediators Seek To Settle Six Walkouts

Strikes Are Holding Up Production on Orders for Defense.

By UNITED PRESS.
Strikes still were in progress last night at six plants holding defense orders and federal media-tors renewed efforts to effect settlement of the disputes and return the plants to production.

Mediators' reports brightened the outlook for negotiations on the two largest strikes—at the Allis-Chalmers manufacturing plant, Milwaukee, and the International Harvester Company's Chicago tractor plant.

The Allis-Chalmers strike, in which 7,800 members of the United Automobile Workers (CIO) are participating in a demand for increased wages, has been in progress 13 days.

Conciliator David G. Roadley announced at Chicago that Harvester officials and leaders of the Farm Equipment Workers' Organizing Committee (CIO) had agreed to confer today in an attempt to settle a strike of 5,500 workers at the tractor plant.

Threat of another walkout was made at Jackson, Mich., by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (CIO), which filed with the state labor mediation board a 30-day notice of intention to strike against the Consumers Power Company. The situation in brief on other disputes:

Rock Falls, Ill.—Pickets of the FEWOC kept members of an independent union from returning to work Monday at Harvester's Rock Falls plant against which both groups struck two weeks ago. Members of the independent, which has a contract to represent employees in bargaining, had voted to resume work. There was no violence.

Cleveland—United States conciliator still attempting to arrange settlement of a strike of 600 employees of the Standard Tool Company.

Bridgeville, Pa.—A strike of 1,100 workmen at the Universal Cyclops Steel Corporation, holding up production on orders for steel rods and ammunition components worth $150,000.

Parkersburg, W. Va.—The Mountain State steel foundry still closed because of a strike of members of the Steel Workers' Organizing Committee (CIO).

LABOR DISPUTE SETTLED.

AIR BASE WORK TO START.
NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 3.—(UP)—A month-old labor dispute which held up construction of a $365,000 National Guard air base was settled tonight.

The New Orleans Building Trades Council of American Federation of Labor unions announced after a long conference that union piledrivers would begin work on the national defense project tomorrow morning. Piledriving had been scheduled to start January 2, but was delayed because union leaders insisted the project be all-union or all-WPA.

House Group in Accord On Restricting Pardons

The house committee on constitutional amendments today will report favorably on a resolution empowering the general assembly to pass legislation placing limitations and restrictions on the pardoning power.

Maxwell Field To Have Cadet School of 1,200

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Senator Hill, Democrat, Alabama, said today the War Department would establish a ground school for flying cadets to operate in connection with other aviation training facilities at Maxwell, Field, Alabama.

He said contracts would be let soon for buildings estimated to cost $593,866 to accommodate the 1,200 ground school cadets.

65 Billion Debt Limit Approved By House Group

Administration Seeks to Raise Figure From 45 Billions.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—(UP)—The administration's bill to increase the national debt limit from $45,000,000,000 to $65,000,000,000—a step regarded as necessary to help finance rearmament—won approval of the house ways and means committee today and may come up for floor consideration next week.

The vote reportedly was 15 to 10, with Republican members solidly opposed. Chairman Robert L. Doughton, Democrat, North Carolina, obtained consent of the house to bring up the measure under a three-hour general debate agreement when the British aid bill has been disposed of.

Republican committeemen fought unsuccessfully to limit the debt hike to $58,500,000,000. Besides raising the debt limit the bill wipes out a special $4,000,000,000 debt category set up last session to finance defense; provides authority for taxing future issues of government securities; and authorizes the treasury to issue savings stamps and low-denomination bonds. These would be designed to interest the general public in contributing its bit to financing the rearmament program.

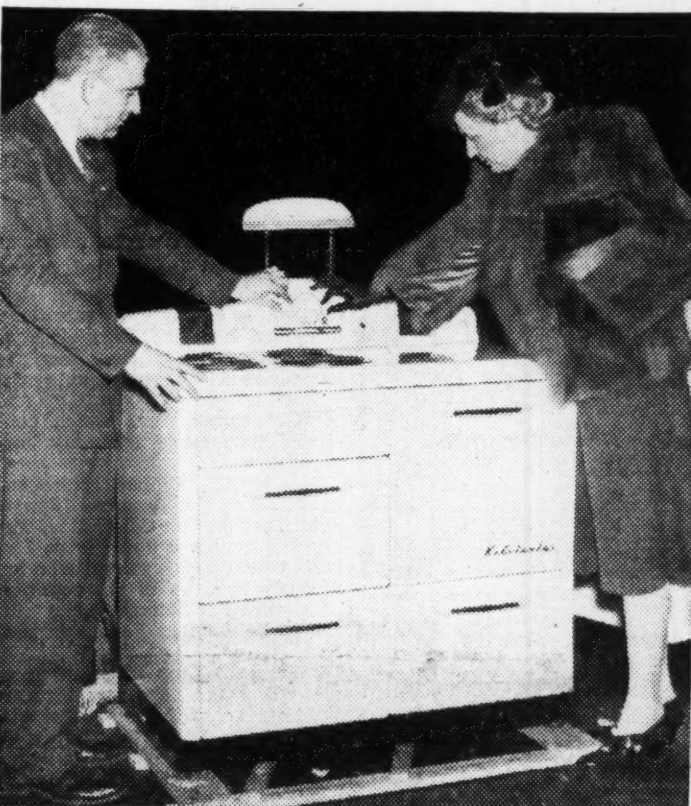

Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. personally appealed to congress for quick action. He told the committee last week that funds thus made available would be sufficient to finance the preparedness drive until June 30, 1942.

The meats, bread, coffee and other groceries used in the demonstrations will be furnished by Big Star super-markets, Little Star food stores and Rogers' quality food shops. All types of aluminumware for use in the kitchen will be provided by King Hardware Company.

The menus will be varied, and Miss Baldrige will present recipes selected for their tastiness. Each day she will introduce new dishes that have been found easy to prepare and attractive to serve. The kitchen cabinet and table will be furnished by Ed Matthews & Company and the lovely dining room suite will be provided by Sterchi's, with Weinstock's flowers adorning the table and stage. Mrs. Baldrige also will show charming table arrangements for simple dinners and formal parties.

An added feature of the school will be the musical program played on a piano equipped with a Solovox from Rich's piano department. The rich tones of the Solovox have been highly praised by music lovers.

To Close at 11:30.

Acting as mistress of ceremonies at the classes will be Miss Sally Saver, popular foods editor of The Constitution and known to hundreds of Atlantans who have heard her discuss food problems at the informal cooking classes conducted in various communities. The school will close at 11:30 o'clock each day and the entire course will be a complete lesson in cooking for those who want to learn, and new dishes will be offered for persons interested in learning the latest culinary methods.

sus. All will use the plans made by the council which call for advertising on billboards, in newspapers, on radio and on street cars. There will be attendance cards for workers, visitors, and members.

Denominations Unified.

Never before in the history of the city have all the denominations been so unified and so enthusiastic about their plan to work together to bring the people of Atlanta to a newer and stronger realization of the necessity for religion and for the turning of the people back to the fundamentals of religion as a basis for everyday life, according to leaders.

Never before have all the denominations shown as much co-operation nor have they developed, co-operatively, so much general aid and planning for the individual use of all the churches in all their denominations, it was announced.

An inter-racial meeting, the first of its kind, is to be held next Thursday morning with all white and Negro ministers of the city asked to attend at the Wesley Memorial church at 10 o'clock. Dr. J. V. Gardner will speak for the white ministers and Dr. C. D. Hubert for the Negro.

The council also took action on a number of civic matters, as follows:

Expressed the hope, through resolution, that no bills to legalize gambling would be introduced in the state legislature, and, ironically enough, expressed pleasure no bills had been introduced almost at the time a bill to legalize horse racing and dog racing was tossed into the legislative hopper.

Asked city council to refuse to permit for a liquor store at Piedmont avenue and Boulevard in the sixth ward where almost the entire ward is without a liquor store.

Announced the committee on civics had promises from the Fulton county and DeKalb delegations to submit a bill providing for a penalty for sale or possession of obscene literature.

Announced also the committee was looking thoroughly into the city prison camp situation, where efforts are being made to oust Superintendent Gibson, whose record has met with considerable approval from church committees who have visited the prison.

Churches' Homes.

Commended the efforts to keep open and maintain the Churches' Homes for Girls, they being homes where working girls may obtain room and board at a low rate.

Plans also were made to obtain, from a survey already ordered, a method of procedure to be followed for providing recreation for soldiers already stationed and to be stationed, at Fort McPherson and Camp Gordon.

Churches will unite together in working out a plan to provide recreation of a suitable and pleasing nature on Sunday afternoons and evenings, leaders said.

Another co-operative plan is for a sunrise service at Grant field on Easter morning with 30,000 or more expected.

The speaker at Monday's meeting was Ralph McGill, of The Atlanta Constitution.

by Ethiopian patriots from rebellious Bojiam province.

The British were said to be pressing behind the Ethiopians. The communique said:

"On February 3 bomber aircraft of the RAF carried out very heavy and successful raids on Castel Benito and surrounding districts. During the night of February 2 and 3 several tons of high explosive and incendiary bombs were dropped and at least seven enemy aircraft grounded on the aerodrome were destroyed by fire.

"In addition other aircraft machinegunned motor transport on the road west of the aerodrome and on the main road near Zan-zur, causing considerable damage. All our aircraft returned safely." This air raid marked the furthest westward push of the British in their African campaign and indicated that conquest of all Italian Libya—clear to the border of French Tunisia was the objective of General Sir Archibald P. Wavell's army.

Senate Clears Way for Debate On Budget Bill

Pass Measure Providing for Prison Farm Superintendent.

By CHARLES GILMORE.

The senate yesterday passed a bill providing for a state superintendent of prison farms to supplant the old board of penal corrections, which voted itself out of existence two weeks ago, and acted to limit a reorganized state prison and parole commission by requiring gubernatorial approval of all paroles.

The upper house, after passing a few minor bills, then cleared its decks for the action which is expected today when the house-approved budget bill comes up for debate. The bill enables the Governor to shift surplus funds from one department to another and is held to be a key bill of the Talmadge program.

Senate foes of the proposal expect to fight it on grounds of unconstitutionality.

A bill that would make State Auditor B. E. Thrasher Jr., a general disbursing officer for any claims against state departments was recommitted to a special judiciary committee with instructions that it confer with Thrasher on the "practicability" of the proposed law.

Introduced by Senator Park, of the 19th, the act would require all persons having any claim or demand against the state to submit the claim to the auditor for approval before the Treasurer can honor the warrant. This would apply to salaries of state employees and traveling expenses.

In debate Senator Park claimed that last year more than $9,000,000 in traveling expenses was paid out by the Treasurer and then audited. He contends that a pre-audit would save the taxpayers thousands of dollars annually.

A revamped prison and parole commission, according to yesterday's legislation if it meets approval in the house, cannot grant a parole unless investigation shows that the prison record of the criminal is satisfactory and unless the Governor approves.

The original prison bill, introduced by Senators Campbell, of the 34th, and Redwine, of the 26th, was supplanted by the substitute passed yesterday, drawn by Senators Campbell, Edwards, of the 16th, and Houston, of the 51st. It was said to have the approval of the Governor, who met with the three-man committee.

It was pointed out by Senator Houston that the substitute, which passed 38-0, does not grant full pardon power to the Governor, and, in fact, does not affect the pardoning law at all. The proposed law merely subjects paroles to gubernatorial approval along with unanimous vote of the parole commission.

The bill creates a state superintendent of prison farms, appointed by the Governor at a salary of $5,000 per year. The bill also prohibits the superintendent from selling any prison manufactured products in competition with private industry except for the needs of the state.

All prison personnel under the proposed arrangement will be subject to the approval of the Governor and no construction work can be carried on by the prison authority unless the Governor so directs.

Request Approval. Senate President Redwine took the floor at the outset of yesterday's session and asked that his bill, cutting the salaries of public safety commissioners, be held over for debate until tomorrow. His request was given unanimous approval.

A bill introduced by Senator Couch, of Fulton, was passed 28-3

Christus Began Career at Age Of Ten Months

Josef Meier Is Seventh Generation in Passion Play Role.

By CAROLYN MCKENZIE.

Josef Meier was virtually born the Prince of Peace. He was dressed in swaddling clothes and placed in a manger when he was 10 months old. And now, 36 years later, he is living the life of the Christus. He never has known any other life.

Not only did he take a part in the Passion Play of the Black Hills at a young age but he was born into more than the play itself. His grandfather, and his father before him—as far back as seven generations—have been the Christus.

The Prince of Peace left the land into which he was born, the once religion-conscious section of Germany, because he could not enact a life in which freedom ruled, when visitors became fewer, travel became more complicated, and his became a totalitarian state where the press is censored, language is guarded, and human beings are suppressed.

There just could not be a spirit of Nazism growing up like weeds around a deserted tree which was the teachings of Christianity. So the original company of the Passion Play of the Black Hills of Leiden left Germany, came to the United States, and translated their story into the English language, ultimately to travel around from city to city, telling their epochs between 400 and 450 times each year. They revised the European play and now give the entire performance in 22 scenes, beginning with Palm Sunday.

Josef Meier thinks Europe lost a definite part of her life when the Passion Plays were pushed out by armies. The characters are selected according to their physical appearance, their moral character, and their ability, Meier revealed.

The United States is likely to grow more flax for oil, since flaxseed are listed as one of 20 "critical materials" in war industries.

RFC Chairman To Be Presented By Talmadge

Freight Bureau To Hear Schram, Governor at Annual Dinner.

Governor Talmadge yesterday accepted an invitation to address the thirty-ninth annual dinner meeting of the Atlanta Freight Bureau at 6:30 o'clock Thursday night at the Atlanta Athletic Club.

The Governor will introduce Emil Schram, of Washington, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Schram will speak on "Transportation and Defense."

"Because of the important part which the RFC, through its lending and purchasing powers, is taking in our defense program, Mr. Schram's address is expected to be of national interest," E. L. Hart, traffic manager and executive secretary of the Freight Bureau, said yesterday.

More than 300 industrialists and public officials of Atlanta and the southeast will attend. J. C. Darby, chairman of the South Carolina Public Service Commission, and state utilities officials of at least two other states will be among the guests.

Schram will reach Atlanta from Washington Thursday morning and will be entertained at a businessmen's luncheon at noon at the Athletic Club.

80 Charitable Groups To Send Delegates Here

Representatives of approximately 80 Community Chests and Social Planning Councils located in every state east of the Mississippi and south of the Mason-Dixon line will gather in Atlanta at the Biltmore hotel Friday and Saturday for the second annual southeast conference of Community Chests and Councils.

All Atlanta persons interested in welfare work are invited to attend the sessions which begin Friday at 10 a. m. with discussions of the effect of the war on money raising and social service programs.

Jewry Leaders Conclude 4-Day Assembly Here

Problems To Be Met Following War Are Discussed.

Jewish leaders from Europe, Palestine and the United States, representing nine national and overseas welfare organizations, described how the Jewish people are responding to the war in various parts of the world, at the Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds, Inc., which concluded its general assembly here yesterday.

Morris C. Troper, European chairman of the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee, who arrived in this country from Lisbon several days ago and who has recently been in all the countries of continental Europe, said the job to be done in Europe is twofold.

"We must keep alive the people whom the democracies are fighting for, so that when the victory is won, it will not be a hollow victory, and we must restore the right of free men to live in peace," he said. He pointed out that American goods and money was not being used by his committee to aid the Jewish war sufferers, but work was being done to aid refugees to get to Palestine, the United States and other countries.

3 Vichy Vessels Attached in U. S.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 3.—(P)—

Three French ships were attached today by the Royal Exchange Assurance Company of London which charged the French Line defaulted on payments after the collapse of France.

Civil Judge Harold A. Moise signed the attachment order.

One of them, the Michigan, is tied up here. Another, the Angouleme, is moored down the Mississippi river. The third, the Arizona, was reportedly en route here.

The suit was filed against the Compagnie Generale Transatlantique, known as the French Line, which operated the Normandie and the Ile de France.

The British company sued to obtain $1,140,000 which it claimed was part payment for the vessels built for the French Line, in Belfast, Ireland.

Because the Grand Canyon is in the way, ranchmen in Toroweap Valley, Arizona, must travel more than 500 miles to reach the county seat, Kingman, Ariz., less than 100 miles off by airline.

ish life in Europe from 1914 to the present day, in order to prepare the Jewish people to formulate proposals for the restoration of rights for Jews after the war.

Discuss Problems

The discussions and plans of the organizations' meetings were all formulated on the assumption of an ultimate British victory and Dr. Mark Nisner, New York lawyer, president of the American Association for Jewish Education and former president of the Board of Higher Education of the City of New York, discussed educational problems in connection with war emergency welfare work.

Dr. Nisner said that the efforts of American Jews are being concerted as never before to hasten further the cause of Jewish education in this country and to bring the public schools to help with the program of religious education with children of all creeds.

Other meetings held in connection with the general assembly yesterday were Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society with Max Gottschalk, president of HIAS-ICA Emigration Association, speaking on "Migration Problems in Overseas Countries," and John L. Bernstein, chairman of the committee on overseas activities, speaking on the organization's role in this country; the American Ort Federation with Dr. David Lovitch, vice president of the World Ort Union, and Murray Levine, chairman of the American Ort executive committee as speakers; Hadassah, with National President Mrs. David de Sola Pool and Mrs. Oscar G. Bender, chairman of the women's division of the Allied Jewish Appeal speaking; and the National Council of Jewish Women, with Mrs. Donald Oberdorfer, of Atlanta, vice president of the Southern Interstate NCJW, and Mrs. Florian Strassburger, of Montgomery, president of the Southern Interstate NCJW, presiding.

IN WHO'S WHO—Thomas Norvell Ashburn, Atlanta student at Wake Forest, will be honored by being named in "Who's Who Among College Students."

Atlantan Gets Student 'Who's Who' Rating

Thomas N. Ashburn, Wake Forest College, Given Listing.

Thomas Norvell Ashburn, editor of The Howler, Wake Forest College publication, will be among those named in this year's edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities," it became known here yesterday.

Ashburn, son of Mrs. Gertrude N. Ashburn, of 815 Peachtree street, will graduate from Wake Forest this spring. He received his early education in the public schools here, graduating from Boys' High in 1937.

He has been active in fraternal affairs at Wake Forest, is treasurer of the Pan-Hellenic Council, a member of the O. D. K., and treasurer of the North Carolina Collegiate Press Association.

Huge Drainage Fund Allotted For Hinesville

Washington Approval of $120,695 Project Announced Here.

Washington approval of $120,695 malarial drainage project at Camp Stewart, Hinesville, Ga., was announced here yesterday by Harry E. Harman Jr., state WPA administrator.

The project was certified as necessary to the health of the more than 20,000 soldiers stationed at the camp, and work was started at once.

This new project calls for expenditure of $118,895 in federal funds, plus $1,800 furnished by the sponsor, the State Department of Public Health.

Harman also disclosed that an additional appropriation of $70,000 for this first unit of the project is awaiting Washington approval, and a second unit, to be submitted to Washington, calls for $231,000 more to be spent in malarial drainage work at the camp itself.

Start on the first unit begins a project which will require the services of at least 200 men for two years, Harman said, adding the immediate job will be to excavate more than 15 miles, or approximately 800,000 cubic feet of earth, for ditches, to drain off swamp waters around the camp and empty them into the Peacock river.

Harman added this is the first project of its type in the state and nation, and that it was certified as essential to the health of the troops by Colonel James E. Bayles, Fourth Corps area surgeon, and L. L. Williams Jr., senior surgeon of the United States Department of Public Health, assigned as liaison officer to the Fourth Corps area.

Camp Stewart, comprising more than 300,000 acres, is the latest and largest of the War Department's camps for special weapon firing and accommodates anti-aircraft regiments only.

Government Expands Contracting Division

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—(P)—An expansion of offices to encourage wider subcontracting on defense projects and to advise defense contractors generally was announced by the Office of Production Management today in cooperation with the Federal Reserve System.

The OPM said that its office of small business activities would be known hereafter as the Defense Contract Service and that, for administrative purposes, it was being transferred from the Division of Purchases to the Production Division.

Italians Deserting, American Reports

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Feb. 3.—(P)—A passenger returning today on the American export liner Exeter said that during his stay in Yugoslavia he had seen "thousands of Italian soldiers crossing the (Yugoslavia) frontier, cheering wildly."

The passenger, Richard Elias, of Elgin, Ill., who has lived in Dubrovnik, Yugoslavia, for the past four years, said the soldiers all showed evidences of hunger and appeared to be glad to be interned. "I saw more Italian troops in Yugoslavia than I did in Trieste," Elias said.

Belgian Vessel Brings Scotch Whisky to U. S.

BOSTON, Feb. 3.—(P)—The Belgian steamer Ville de Liege arrived today from British ports with 17,000 cases of Scotch whisky and other cargo.

She formerly sailed under the American flag as the American Farmer, but was transferred to a Belgian holding company after the war zone was forbidden to ships of this country.

The vessel brought back 37 race horses, mostly brood mares and colts. Two horses well known on the English turf—Plucky Sailor and Colorado Lad—were among them. Caretakers estimated the latter was worth about $15,000. The voyage, made without convoy, was described as "uneventful."

Resolution Asks Old Age Pay List

A resolution calling on the State

Department of Public Welfare to provide senators with the names and addresses of all Georgians receiving old-age pensions was introduced in the senate today by Senator H. B. Edwards, of Valdosta.

Japan Moves Again

Indications are that decisions affecting Far Eastern policy will have to be taken within the next few days that may overshadow any discussion of the lease-lend bill. For Japan is on the march southward, striking again at a time when Anglo-American interest is centered in another section of the world.

Troop transports are reported near Saigon, French Indo-China, and a naval squadron rides at anchor off the vital port, a naval base that in unfriendly hands will seriously endanger Singapore, threaten encirclement of the Philippine Islands and provide yet another base for operations against the Dutch East Indies. In Tonkin province, Japanese troops violated the September agreement with the French government by occupation of the town of Haiduong.

Occupation of Saigon will pose grave problems for the United States as well as Great Britain and, realistically viewing the action, should call for an immediate joint demonstration on the part of the United States and Great Britain centering around Singapore. Dangerous though this might be, it is the only method by which these countries can hope to forestall a further and stronger Japanese penetration southward.

Control of Saigon will give the Japanese navy control of the Gulf of Siam, and a striking base for operations against the Malay peninsula. It advances Japanese bases 600 miles southward from the southernmost formerly in their hands—the Paracels—and 800 miles from Hainan Island. The naval base is almost equidistant from Singapore, Borneo and the Philippines, and naval units operating from such a port could effectively and seriously hamper co-ordinated action from Singapore and the Philippines against Japanese control of the South China sea coastline.

If the United States and Great Britain do not act in the immediate future to forestall Japanese expansionist moves, even at the cost of extending the war in Europe and spreading it to world-wide proportions, then these countries must become reconciled to the permanent closing of the door to China, of the loss of the Malay peninsula, and the probable loss of Singapore and the Dutch East Indies. All, individually and collectively, have serious import for the future well-being of both countries.

Wonder how long it would take congress to adjourn if the national capital was on fire? With civilization rapidly burning it has taken them a month, already, to think about calling out the fire department, in the form of the aid-to-Britain bill.

The Evening College

A story of achievement that is truly remarkable is told in the annual report of George M. Sparks, director of the Georgia Evening College and its auxiliary, the Junior College.

Located in Atlanta, the Evening College is an important unit in the University System of Georgia. It offers the opportunity for college education to students who, for financial reasons, are unable to attend an ordinary institution of higher learning. The student at the Evening College is self-supporting, employed during the daylight hours and devoting three evenings a week to his classes. The scholastic records achieved are ample proof of the value of the courses given, credits from the college being accepted by other colleges and universities. At the same time there is a material benefit evidenced in a survey which shows an average annual increase in earning power of the students of 10 per cent.

Evidence of the sincerity of the student body is found in the Student Credit Union. This organization, chartered as other credit unions, has no compulsory means of forcing repayment of loans. Members are not in receipt of pay checks from the institution. Yet, out of nearly $40,000 loaned to students in three years, the loss has been only one-thousandth of one per cent. This minute loss, it should be noted, is not against the college, but the credit union, a separate organization.

High school graduates from all over Georgia come to Atlanta to continue their education at the Evening College and, through the co-operation of students already employed, and of Atlanta's business houses, all who need jobs for self-support are able to secure them.

Enrollment at the Evening College is now close to 2,500, while the Junior College will exceed 500 this year.

The Evening College has provided the door to advanced education, greater earning power and a finer life to thousands of young Georgians who otherwise would have been unable to advance beyond their high school courses. Such a service is inestimable in value to the state.

Dora thinks she, even, could do better than the Duce's invincibles. At least she can go out and capture a Greek fraternity pin.

Defense and Disease.

National Social Hygiene Day, which is tomorrow, will be marked in Atlanta by a conference of the Georgia Social Hygiene Council, which will occupy the entire day at the Atlanta Athletic Club.

Stress is laid, in the announced program, on the addition to the ever-present problem of sex health and hygiene which is presented by the establishment of large cantonments and assemblies of young men undergoing military training. The problem of the female camp follower has been present in the world ever since the hordes of primitive man swept forth to war.

Fortunately the United States and its people are better equipped today than ever before to cope with this menace. Largely through the efforts of the United States Public Health Service, with the co-operation of state health departments, an organized, intelligent campaign for the eradication of syphilis and gonorrhea is under way in many parts of the country. The United States department is conducting an exhaustive experiment, for instance, in south Georgia, seeking to stamp out the diseases in a block of counties.

One of the greatest of achievements so far in the campaign has been the education of the public to frank acknowledgement of the diseases and their menace. Today it is permissible in polite conversation to refer to the diseases by their proper names, instead of under the misleading and prudish "social diseases" which was the language of earlier generations.

The program for Wednesday is wide and comprehensive in its approach to its subject. Many authorities are among the speakers and it will undoubtedly contribute to the advance of the campaign.

Syphilis has been almost entirely eliminated among the populations of some other countries, notably those of Scandinavia, and if they can do it, so can the United States.

Looked at from the proper perspective, the situation created by the establishment of large military training camps is a magnificent opportunity for advance in the fight against the diseases and, intelligently handled, should benefit the greater national program rather than hinder it.

At this time the phrenologists might take a look at Benito for new bumps, as they say he and Adolf have had their heads together.

Adolf is doing a lot of huffing and puffing. But Britain isn't a house of straw and even placid Uncle Sam is building a solid brick home as quick as he can.

Editorial Symposium

WAR CLOUDS OVER WASHINGTON

"Unless all signs and omens are false, the next time the President of the United States goes before the congress with a message, it will be to ask the congress to declare war upon Germany and Italy," thinks the GRAND RAPIDS HERALD, while the SACRAMENTO BEE feels "it is one thing to sympathize with Great Britain, as all good Americans do most fervently, to wish her well, and to pray ardently for her success against Hitler, the tyrant. But is quite another thing to go so far in our sympathy for the brave and oppressed British as to plunge America into the horrible maelstrom in Europe—a blunder all vowed we never again would make after 'saving the world for Democracy' in 1917-18."

"The United States is now engaged in an undeclared war against the Axis powers," declares the HARTFORD COURANT, which feels, "There is no longer any use of trying to pretend that we are not in this war and that we can stop short of accepting full consequences. . . . About the only thing we can hope for now is some event that will bring an unexpected peace to a war-torn and impoverished world which will give what we call civilization another chance to make good its pretenses." And, considering the World War, the SAN FRANCISCO CHRONICLE insists, "We did not fight in vain. We gained a respite of 20 years. The weakness of that truce, as it was arranged, was that it did not go far enough to safeguard democracy permanently."

The DETROIT FREE PRESS suggests that "while it might be regarded as impertinent for this country to insist upon Great Britain revealing its war aims in detail, there can be no impertinence in Americans demanding to know what their own government's war aims are. . . . After all, we, the people, will have to make the sacrifices, foot the bill and shed the blood, if worse comes to worst, and we shouldn't be asked to do that without knowing what we are fighting for." and the LOS ANGELES TIMES adds the thought that "if the all-aid policy is a mistake, it is one to which we are already committed. With the example of trampled impartiality that Germany has furnished and Italy has tried to furnish, the technical state of neutrality has lost any significance it may earlier have had," while the ARIZONA REPUBLIC points out that "there is much that is analogous between this year of 1941 when the nation stands on the brink of war and the year 1917 when the nation also stood on the brink of war. Before the year of 1917 was one-third gone, the nation had gone to war. The opening of the year 1941 finds the nation virtually at war as the economic ally of Great Britain."

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

NAMING A JUSTICE WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Justice James C. McReynolds had hardly resigned when Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, led a delegation of senators to the White House to press the claims of James F. Byrnes, of South Carolina to the newly vacant place on the court. The President enthusiastically told the senators that "there was no one he'd rather name than Jimmy Byrnes," and sent them away with the impression the job was Byrnes' for the asking.

It is widely assumed, therefore, that Byrnes will be appointed to the court as soon as the lease-lend bill is safely passed and signed. The President's obligations to Byrnes are very great. Although the extremely influential friends of Attorney General Robert H. Jackson still insist he has the refusal of the justiceship, the President can hardly pass over Byrnes without seriously souring the congressional situation.

Nevertheless, there are several reasons to suppose that the expected will not happen. In the first place, for all his enthusiasm, the President offered the senators no commitment. Second, Byrnes is an extraordinarily youthful and energetic man, but at 62 he is two years past the age the President once announced as his limit for appointments to the bench. And third, and much the more important, what the President told the senators was one of those genial half-truths which conceal rather than reveal. There are few men in Washington he owes more to than Byrnes, or likes better, or more enjoys to honor. But Byrnes is not the ideal leader in the senate, there is probably no one he would less like to remove to another sphere.

For these reasons, it is not a bad guess that one of two things may happen. Either the President may name Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley to the bench instead of Byrnes. Thus the road would be cleared for Byrnes to become majority leader himself, and the management of the senate would vastly improve. Or the President may call in Byrnes (which he has not yet done), tell him what he told the senatorial delegation, and then plead with him to stay on in the senate as a great personal favor. Thus, if Byrnes yielded to the plan, the senate status quo would be preserved and Jackson or some other New Deal choice would inherit McReynolds' robes.

TOO BIG FOR HIS BRITCHES

Byrnes' sudden desire to be the chief justice for the court was a sharp surprise to all but his closest friends. He is now one of the five or six most powerful and useful men in the government. On the court, he would be but one of nine, and the junior of the group at that. But his motives are rather easy to understand. For all his energy and youthfulness, he is a man of nervous constitution, ill-fitted to carry the double burden of public business and the endless petty tasks of politics. His South Carolina colleague, Senator Ellison D. Smith, makes something of a virtue of his bad relations with the administration. Talking of constituents that he can do them no favors so long as the President is in the White House. Byrnes, on the other hand, is known to stand high, and thus all South Carolina batters daily at his doors, demanding everything from postmasterhips and free seeds to housing projects, more CCC camps, and $50,000,000 dams. So long as he is a senator like any other man, he cannot turn a cold shoulder to his neighbors. If he did, the state would ring with the story that "Jimmy Byrnes was getting too big for his britches."

This difficulty would be removed if he were majority leader, for southern electorates like so well to see their home-town boys make good that they ask no more than the glory. But Byrnes' second problem arises precisely from the fact that he is not majority leader. Barkley, a decent, well-intentioned man, but maladroit in all the arts of legislative management, has the official leader's place, owing to the stupidest political error the President ever made. Byrnes now knows his error, and constantly relies on Byrnes to capture the senate in the difficult fight. Unfortunately, this puts Byrnes in an exceedingly delicate position vis-a-vis Barkley. As he has no great seniority, it also requires him to exercise endless and somewhat exhausting diplomacy in dealing with the senate committee chairmen and other older men. So far, Byrnes has succeeded in simultaneously walking on eggs and carrying a heavier responsibility than any other senator. He enjoys legislative responsibilities more than any other kind, and if his position were not so delicate, no one could doubt he would be delighted to stay on in the senate. No one can blame him now, however, for wishing to ascend the bench.

NOT A SIMPLE CHOICE

As justice, Byrnes would start with less legal learning than some of his colleagues. On the other hand, he would enjoy two great advantages, having a brilliant mind and a rich experience in the practical workings of the constitution. Practical knowledge is as useful on the modern court as theoretical, and Byrnes' appointment would be far above the average.

The trouble is that, while from an abstract standpoint he would make a good judge, his removal from the senate would be little less than tragic in such times as these. The lease-lend bill can hardly be the last great measure that the world situation will bring before congress. As each issue is presented, time will press, and wise leadership will be urgently required. Barkley, for all his good intentions, cannot help but bumble and fumble. Pat Harrison, while he has returned to harness, will not work hard enough to fill Byrnes' place. Despite the size of the Democratic majority, there is no other administration senator who measures up. Thus the President's choice is not so simple, nor his decision so certain, as they have been made to seem.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

A Georgia Statesman.

Friends of Senator Walter F. George, of Georgia, have known for years that he is of the caliber of which great statesmen are made. Today, since his occupancy of the chairmanship of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, the country as a whole is discovering that greatness.

The fault, if fault it be, that has beset the Georgian in his years in the senate, is excessive modesty. He has been one of the more infrequent speakers on the floor, because he has hesitated to force his views upon his colleagues, except in special instances. Whenever he has made a speech, it has been listened to with far more respect than that given to most others and has been acclaimed as the expression of a keen, analytical and well-informed mind.

Even President Roosevelt today must be thankful that his own effort to "purge" the Georgia statesman out of office two years ago did not succeed. For it is difficult to imagine a more effective leader for the administration's lease-lend bill than Senator George.

A Great Speech.

A week ago Monday night Senator George spoke over a nationwide radio hook-up on the National Radio Forum. He analyzed the lease-lend bill in simple, clear terms that any man could understand, explaining its complete constitutionality and adherence to the principles of international law. His championship of the bill was lucid, logical and persuasive and, thereby, undoubtedly carries great weight.

But Frederic William Wile, Washington observer and columnist, has referred, in glowing terms, to this speech in his column, "Washington Observation," in the Washington Evening Star. Says Mr. Wile:

"Seldom is the air audience privileged to hear so cogent and statesmanlike a broadcast as Senator Walter F. George's address in the National Radio Forum last Monday night. The analysis of the lease-lend bill by the new chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee was the most lucid and persuasive presentation of the aid-to-Britain measure yet to come from the post-adorned through the years by names like John Sherman, Hannibal Hamlin, Simon Cameron, Shelby M. Cullom, Henry Cabot Lodge and William E. Borah. Certainly his maiden and of international law. In logical terms that came appropriately from a former Georgia state supreme court justice, Senator George cited from the constitution and from United States supreme court findings to prove unambiguously that the lease-lend act is fully consonant with the law of the land. For all its good intentions, cannot help but bumble and fumble. Pat Harrison, while he has returned to harness, will not work hard enough to fill Byrnes' place. Despite the size of the Democratic majority, there is no other administration senator who measures up. Thus the President's choice is not so simple, nor his decision so certain, as they have been made to seem.

"The chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee was at his best, too, in arguing that the pending proposal unquestionably reflects the American people's will to furnish material support to other free countries in our own proper and vital defense." Senator George's address, based upon the sounding the keynote for the sort of dignified consideration which so vital a project deserves on the floors of house and senate.

Worthy Heir

Of Great Tradition.

"As the wave lengths have been burdened for weeks with an almost unprecedented violence of discussion on the subject, the radio audience must have welcomed with special satisfaction Senator George's dispassionate exposition of the purely legislative aspects of the lease-lend program. He gave assurance that congress will be openminded to improvements offered in the course of debates or hearings. He pledged tolerance for 'constructive suggestions,' though warning against 'emasculating amendments' that would scuttle the bill and block the achievement of its great purposes."

Many listeners could not help recalling that the distinguished Georgian, who was making so forceful an appeal for a pre-eminent Roosevelt measure, is one of the men whom the President in 1938 unsuccessfully attempted to "purge." Senator George's friends are confident his leadership of the lease-lend bill fight in the senate will prove him a worthy heir of the great tradition adhering to the chairmanship of the Foreign Relations Committee. They are confident he is destined, in the course of time, to establish a notable record in the post-adorned through the years by names like John Sherman, Hannibal Hamlin, Simon Cameron, Shelby M. Cullom, Henry Cabot Lodge and William E. Borah. Certainly his maiden

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3. William Green has issued a threat of a great national boycott by the unions of the American Federation of Labor against the Scripps-Howard newspapers and I take it, against all other newspapers which have published revelations of the dishonest and predatory character of many unions and their leadership. An AFL paper on the coast has uttered a similar threat strongly suggesting that publishers be warned that they stand to lose the bulk of their patronage. And, as reported here before, in Cincinnati a delegation called on the editor of the Post to demand that he suppress the truth about the robbery, persecution and exploitation of working people by union leaders. Three members of this delegation, incidentally, represented rat-infested unions.

These publishers may do as they see fit, but for the first time am now prepared to say that I take it, as a publisher, I am official and that the step which he now proposes would be as much in his own interest as in the interest of the downright, undisguised crooks whom his boycott would protect. All this time I have been victim of a self-imposed assumption that Green, whatever his natural shortcomings, was a man who meant well and was free of blame.

It seems to me now, however, that the burden of proof has been shifted to Mr. Green and the threat of a boycott, couched in characteristic indirect language which does not disguise its intent, I interpret as the attempt of a worried man to suppress the truth rather than face and answer it. Obviously, if Green and other bosses of the AFL unions could silence those papers which have exposed the perfidy which has existed under his very eyes and nose without hindrance by William Green, but, indeed, with his connivance, he would not have to give an account of his stewardship to his rank-and-file people or to the United States congress.

What It

Would Mean.

A boycott— if Green and the frightened labor press of his group could call a boycott and make it stick—would mean malnutrition if not starvation for the papers in question. About four million men, and through their influence millions of other consumers, would not only quit buying these papers—a serious loss of good circulation—but would shun goods and services advertised with two results: (a) That advertising rates would fall in proportion to the loss of circulation and (b) that some advertisers would cease altogether to patronize them. Notwithstanding the declaration of John L. Lewis that he had explored the mind of William Green and was prepared to say that there was nothing in it, I insist that Mr. Green is wily enough to know what a boycott would mean in terms of distress to the papers and of benefit to himself if he could make it stick.

However, I do not believe Green could make a boycott stick, for it is too plainly the threat of a man who has much to conceal and is on the point of asking the assistance of the very people who have most to gain by the elimination of the negligent or incompetent and, possibly, derelict Green.

Why should it be assumed that Green has been an honest man when it has been shown not even denied by him that he indulged in two unspeakable crooks—Scalise and Bloff, neither of whom, as he well knew, ever did a decent day's work and both of whom he had every reason to know were racketeering under the license of charters issued by the AFL? Can charity be stretched to cover Green's tolerance of the conduct of the common laborers' union when, in his position, he must have known that this verminous organization had not given an account of its affairs to its own members over a period of 31 years, and in all that time, had never held a single election of any national officer?

Is Alarm

Due to Fear?

Green's alarm now, I here suggest, is due to apprehension that further revelations are about to be made wherein he would be dead right for own and that as a result of the disclosures he would appear no longer in the role of the fumbling, earnest innocent but as a crafty collaborator with crooks who have victimized the rank-and-file members of the unions. And he is kept in mind that these racketeer publishers of union journals are now crying boycott are not concerned over labor's gains or the right to organize, from the workers' standpoint, but over their own gains and perquisites and their own right to organize great numbers of helpless victims into units convenient for robbery and exploitation.

speech in his new capacity gets Senator George away to a flying start in public esteem and the repute of all the powers that be in Washington, executive and legislative alike."

Twenty-Five

Years Ago.

From the news columns of Wednesday, February 4, 1916: "Mr. John T. Cooper, Mr. and Mrs. Will Spalding, Mrs. Stocker and Miss Corinne Stocker, Dr. Boland and family, Dr. Renoff and Dr. John Head are among the latest to engage passage for the Mardi Gras excursion."

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

GLUE WORKS—HALT! Even when he walked into the ante-room I could see his face was red. He was breathing loudly. His eyes were snapping. The young lady came in and said he was Major John R. Thornton, presently assigned to the 63d Cavalry Reserve. I looked again. The major's eyes still were snapping. He still was breathing loudly. He obviously was in a fine rage. Also he clutched something behind his back. I got up and took a look. It was a magazine. Not a horse whip. "Come in," I said, feebly. He did not walk in. He marched in. "Young man," he said, "the other day you had an article saying the mechanized units meant good-bye to the cavalry and the horse."

"Well, major, you see—" "No, sir," he said, "I don't!" "But, surely, with tanks going 60 miles an hour and with trucks and armored cars making even better time, the horse is—" "Not doomed. Not a bit of it. The horse and the cavalry are coming back. We have never had enough cavalry. That's the trouble."

"But against machineguns?" The major got up and carefully walked around his chair. Then he sat very still and counted up to 10.

"Wait," he said, "I want to count to 20." He did. Then he said, very calmly indeed, that this was the obvious question and one everyone asked and that all cavalrymen usually went straight up in the air when they heard it, or else they gnashed their teeth or bit their fingernails or something like that.

THE HORSE CAN GO "The horse," said Major Thornton, speaking for the cavalry, "can go in France in the first war we'd not now be in the trouble we are in."

"You mean in trench warfare?" "I mean, if there had been cavalry on the flanks the end would have come sooner. General Pershing, I am informed, wanted them but there was no way to get them. Cavalry on the flanks would have broken up much of the stalemate of trench warfare just as mechanized troops avoided it in the present war."

"But," I protested feebly, "in the present war the Germans moved so quickly—" "Along roads," he said, "along roads. Yes. But they used plenty of cavalry."

(Available records show the Germans used 18,000 cavalry but did employ 800,000 horses for transport duty.)

"Placing your fire at the position it will do the most good is the vital factor," said the major. "And horses and mules can do that better than anything else, unless, of course, you have nice smooth roads leading to all places where you want to place your guns."

"The Germans used their tanks on roads and over smooth terrain. But they also employed thousands of horses in transport because the horse or mule can go where the tank or truck cannot go."

The major was not pulling his punches. As an old cavalryman, and the adjective is used figuratively, he was in there fighting for his beloved unit—the cavalry.

The average person may believe that the horse is headed for the glue works before the charge of the light tanks, the heavy tanks and the armored divisions.

But your real cavalryman believes we are going to have more cavalry than ever before. And, from all indications, he is right.

FOR NATIONAL DEFENSE Certainly cavalry is suited to our national defense. We have wide stretches of territory where there are no roads. And should Mexico or South America be invaded by Germany or any foreign power and ask us for help, then cavalry would be of tremendous advantage in terrain where tanks cannot go.

We know now that control of the air is the first factor. The War Department now plans to attach two regiments of horse cavalry to each division. There will be 1,200 men in each of these regiments. The division will be motorized with scouts cars, light tanks, anti-tank guns and heavy weapon troops. There also will be motorcycles. The motorcycles and the cavalry will be used for reconnaissance.

The old-time cavalry maneuvers and drills largely will be abandoned. But all Americans will be glad to know the cavalry is coming back. The cavalry is a part of the American scene. It is a part of the simeons of our history.

As old John Trotwood Moore, God rest him, used to say in his big house in the Tennessee hills: "The tracks of the horse, the dog and man have come along together down the path of history, and if we ever lose our love for the dog or the horse then man is a gone animal."

Major Thornton won his case. Cavalry can give fire power as a tank cannot. It supplies mobile fire power. And the horse, used in transport, can bring up that fire power over terrain which would halt a tank.

The major and I stood, gave three cheers for the cavalry, and adjourned the meeting.

They Serve Best Who Leave The Earth Better Than They Found It

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

When Bill Jones died, people were not surprised when they heard the funeral service would be held at the farm house. They had seldom seen him at church. There was another brief service at the cemetery, but Bill didn't know about it, for he was standing before a strange and shining gate.

"Howdy, Bill," said the gatekeeper. "I've been looking over your record while waiting for you. I find you are charged with working on Sunday."

"I'm guilty, I reckon," said Bill, "but it wasn't regular work. The birds in our section are being killed off, and I spent a few Sundays fixing a place for them. I planted peas and grain in that back field, so they could feed in the stubble, and then I made brush shelter along the fence so I could feed them when the ground was covered with snow."

"Yes, I know," said the gatekeeper. "But you didn't pay the preacher much, either. What about that?"

"Money was scarce," said Bill. "I never made much, and it cost a lot to put up tight fences to keep the hunters and varmints out of my fields."

"What about those fruit trees?" asked the gatekeeper. "You spent a lot of money for them, from first to last, and many of them aren't bearing yet?"

"I reckon it was foolish," Bill confessed. "But the birds liked the cherries, and I figured the next owner of the farm would appreciate the apple trees. I hate to see land wasted, and I stuck a fruit tree wherever there was room. It seems a daddled thing to think about being good."

"Hold on there," said the gatekeeper. "That reminds me. You cussed considerable."

"That," said Bill, "was when I was workin' with gulleys. The last owner had let the place waste badly and it was a mess. Took me years to stop the waste of topsoil and make the land rich again and replant the woods he cut out. Nice little forest there now. Looks like I stayed so busy biddin' around I didn't have much time to think about being good."

"I think we can let you in," chuckled the gatekeeper. "You did your part to fix up the garden."

"I didn't garden much," said Bill. "I—"

"The earth," said the gatekeeper, "is his garden."

OFF THE RECORD—By Ed Reed

Discovers Name Of Weird Instrument In Marching Bands.

This is hardly spot news because the last time I ever saw a parade was on Armistice Day. And got to wondering about an instrument I hadn't seen before—in a marching band.

The school bands included a lot of girls. With bare knees. So perhaps nobody noticed whether they were blowing into tubes or beating drums. But I'm getting along—so I observed instruments which looked like xylophones carried in an upright position. Or perhaps "metallophones," a larger variety of the toys we used to give the kids for Christmas—to a three-month regret.

I'd forgotten about my puzzle—until a few days ago I ran across in a midwestern paper a letter from a fellow who had more of the bulldog instinct than I have. He had dug into the subject and found out. For which I am deeply grateful.

The up-and-down xylophone or whatchamacallit is known to the musical trade as a bell-lyre. Composers for orchestras called it "glockenspiel." The little ones have only eight bars—and by "bars" I mean metal strips to be hit with little hammers—and the big ones have 25 of these steel anvils, providing a range of two octaves. I hope I make myself clear—though I'm mighty foggy myself and merely copying from the story.

Well, that's out of my system and I trust it doesn't keep you awake at nights. But it carries me back to the days when—on some grand occasion in New York you could watch—and listen to—a cavalry band. With the musicians on horseback. And big drums swung across the withers (is "withers" right for shoulders?) of a big iron gray horse, while the drummer beat on them. The drums, not the horse.

I cannot say what marching bands will take up next. Maybe there'll be one of these electric organs. In which case they can fire the remainder of the band. You can press a button on an electric organ and get bigger results than John Philip Sousa obtained from his 600-piece Great Lakes training camp band back in 1918. And that, it is reported, chased everybody out of five adjacent counties.

Oh, well, if you don't, you wouldn't remember Maude Adams, either. And "Peter Pan," Nor Lillian Russell. Nor Weber & Fields.

What a story that was! I risked my newspaper job to print—and pay for—a "cut" or engraving of Evelyn six columns wide and a page deep. And did the public eat it up! Pictures of that size are routine now.

Lot of famous murder cases since then. I could list 40. Not including the Lindbergh baby. But I've lost interest in murder cases. They're all pretty much alike. Money madness, jealousy, revenge—or just plain drunk. Big shots or hill-billies—they're all the same.

Somewhat, I'd rather read a country weekly story about how Bill Brown caught a crippled crow and taught it to talk—after a fashion. Or how a tenant farmer down in Lowndes county paid out of debt after a year's hard work and actually had something coming to him—and collected it.

I'll take my crime in a $2 detective story—at 3 cents a day from a lending library. Newspaper crimes are such old stuff.

I knew a hotel lobby hound once who could stroll down a corridor and without even bending his ear to a keyhole could determine whether the party in the room was drinking Scotch, rye or plain lemonade.

In the last instance he moved on and listened again.

He had a presentable appearance and an engaging personality. So when he knocked on a door and the host said: "Come in," it was easy for him to explain he was looking for good old Bill Robertson from Muscogee county—and must have hit the wrong room.

More often than not, the host, in a mellow mood, would invite him to have a little snort. In which case my friend was all fixed until the last bottle ran dry.

"But don't you sometimes get a cold stare and a quick good-night?" I inquired.

"Sometimes," he admitted. "But the percentage is good. I haven't had to buy a pint since the legislature convened."

Speaking of the flu epidemic—"who was?" well I am—I picked up this one from a school magazine:

APPROVES REMOVAL OF GEORGIA POLL TAX

Editor, Constitution: The people of Georgia should, and many of them do, have their eyes riveted on three bills abolishing the poll tax that have been introduced in the general assembly.

Identical bills in the house (H. B. 44) and in the senate (S. B. 17) provide for the elimination of the poll tax. When these are passed, Georgians can henceforth go to the polls freed of this tax on the right to vote.

Nevertheless, those owning past-due poll taxes—which can accumulate against a voter to the sum of $15—will be deprived of their vote unless H. B. 114 cancelling past-due poll taxes is enacted. In 1920 North Carolina removed the poll tax, and subsequent years saw the vote increase 142 per cent. In the 1930's, Louisiana, Pennsylvania and Florida did away with poll tax voting restrictions.

I know that countless Georgians join me in the hope that Georgia will be the next state to take this step toward a fuller democracy.

Good Morning

By Dr. Louie D. Newton.

Dr. George W. Truett spent last Friday night, and last night, in Atlanta, on his way to and from Greenwood, S. C. where he went to dedicate a meeting house. He, with Mrs. Truett, left Atlanta early this morning for their home in Dallas.

It is about that meeting house in Greenwood that I want to say a word in today's column. It impresses me as one of the unique events of the year, of any year. The occasion so impressed Dr. Truett, when the invitation reached him a year ago, that he set aside these several days to make the long journey from his Texas home, putting many another pressing claim upon his time forward, that he might give his blessing to the surprisingly beautiful spirit—which prompted this gracious gift—this breaking of an alabaster box.

A prominent businessman in Greenwood, head of a great textile community, erected in the very center of a great mill section a beautiful house of worship, a veritable poem in stone, as a memorial to his saintly mother, his wife joining him in this gracious gift. The building is described as one of the most complete and magnificent structures in all the south. Securing the chimneys, brought from Belgium for the Belgium building at the World's Fair, this friend installed these bells in the lifting tower of the building as one of the crowning touches of its beauty and ministry.

"I want you, sir, to come and dedicate this sanctuary to the Lord, as a memorial to my dear mother, whose life was dedicated to his will, and whose memory lingers as a fragrant benediction," wrote the son, in requesting the world's greatest living Baptist preacher to deliver the dedicatory sermon last Sunday morning.

"You will agree," said Dr. Truett last Friday evening as he talked about his visit to Greenwood, "how compelling and inspiring was this appeal from the great businessman. Rarely have I been so impressed with any call that reached me in my nearly half century as a minister of the Lord Jesus Christ."

I await with keen interest Dr.

Truett's account of the occasion, which he will have given me on Monday night.

I remember something that Dr. Truett, years ago, wrote about his own mother. I quote from Dr. Truett:

"May I speak a word about my mother, now in that yonder Land these years. She was the best Christian I ever knew. May I speak about her faith? I was reared in a large family, far out on the farm, and I remember that when father and the older boys used to go to the field, the last little fellow, about four, and myself, about six, too little to work yet in the field, stayed behind, and many were the times I have seen my mother in the morning sobbing, and I have gone and said: 'Mother, what makes you cry?' And she would say: 'You are too little, my boy, to understand. Never mind. Don't worry about mother.' And when the breakfast was over and the dishes cleared away, mother would say to the little boys: 'Now you stay here while mother goes aside to be alone a little while.' And she would go away with her face suffused with tears, and she would come back in a little while, singing, with a smile on her face fairer than the morning."

"One morning I said to my little brother: 'What do you guess happens to mother?' She goes away crying, and she come back singing. Let us see what it is."

"I followed along silently behind her, and she went there into the orchard, and we saw her and heard her. She was down on her face before God. She said: 'Lord Jesus, I never can rear this household of boys like they ought to be reared, without Thy help. I will make shipwreck with them, without Thy help. I cannot guide them, I cannot counsel them, I cannot be the mother I ought to be, without Thy help. I will cleave to Thee. Teach me and help me, every hour.' I heard her like that, and then she came back, singing. And when I grew older, and when I learned in my own heart what it is to know Jesus, I then knew the secret into which my mother entered."

Here's Your Record of Sidney, Gordon and Frank and here's OURS

Meet the Edmondson brothers, sons of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Edmondson, Jr., of 991 Blue Ridge Avenue. Fine, handsome boys, aren't they?—with straight, sturdy legs. They look like something for Coach Alex to keep an eye on for the Teams of 1950.

Sidney has a wide toe and narrow heel. Since his mother discovered Davison's Right Shapes, he's been walking happily ever after!

Gordon has normal feet but weak arches. But Right Shape shoes are making them stronger every day.

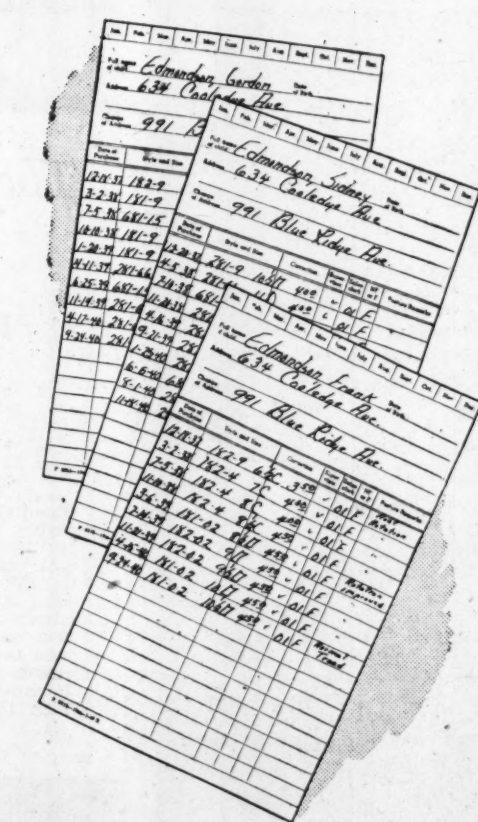

Frank, the youngest, has been wearing Right Shapes since he was knee-high to a grasshopper. They corrected a slight heel rotation.

As with all our young customers, we've kept a careful record of the Edmondson boys' feet through many years. Age, last, size and individual requirements are recorded and referred to at each new fitting. Thus all possibility of error is ruled out.

RIGHT SHAPE OXFORD with shark-tips—the shoe that is helping to keep the Edmondson brothers' feet normal and healthy. X-ray fittings. B, C, D, E widths.

Expecting a Baby?

Mother's Friend helps bring ease and comfort to expectant mothers.

MOTHER'S FRIEND, an exquisitely prepared emollient, is useful in all conditions where a bland, mild anodyne massage medium in skin lubrication is desired. One condition in which women for more than 70 years have used it is an application for massaging the body during pregnancy. It helps keep the skin soft and pliable, thus avoiding unnecessary discomfort due to dryness and tightness. It refreshes and tones the skin. An ideal massage application for the numb, tingling or burning sensations of the skin... for the tired back muscles or cramp-like pains in the legs. Quickly absorbed. Delightful to use.

Mother's Friend
Highly praised by users, many doctors and nurses. Just ask any druggist for Mother's Friend—the skin lubricant. Try it tonight.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day. If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headache and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

The Gentleman

From Carroll... From Clay... From Greene...

Representative W. O. Smith, of Carroll.

Representative W. O. Smith, a school teacher for eight years, is now making his first trip to the Georgia general assembly. He aims to co-operate with the administration and with his fellow solons in every way and to cut top-heavy expenses in order to run the state on the present revenue and take care of the schools. He believes in sane economy and spending. Married, the father of a four-year-old daughter, Smith is 32 years old.

Senator J. C. Foster, of Clay, 11th District.

A farmer who makes his money selling fertilizer and mules, Senator John C. Foster, of Clay, says he "loves to farm but it doesn't pay off." His objective in serving in the upper body this term is to try and do all he can for the people of his district. The 40-year-old senator hopes to co-operate with every phase of the administration as it was designated in the Governor's platform. He is married.

Representative F. A. Tappan Jr., of Greene.

Next to the youngest member of the house is Fred A. Tappan Jr., of Greene county. He was graduated in law at the University of Georgia in 1939 and is now practicing in Atlanta and his home county. His main objective is to raise the standard of the Georgia bar examination and have it engross more than the Georgia Code as its major treatise. He also thinks it should include more educational requirements.

Miss Bankhead To Aid Allies in Program Here

Committee To Defend America To Stage Drive in South.

Tallulah Bankhead, stage and screen star, will come to Atlanta February 14 to appear on a program on behalf of the Southern Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies, it was announced yesterday by Dr. Ashby Jones, vice chairman of the group representing Georgia.

In conjunction with the announcement that Miss Bankhead would appear on the local program, Dr. Jones announced, also, the beginning of a drive to operate in every district, county seat and county of the state. County chairmen will be selected and named at a later date in every town of 1,000 persons. From these local headquarters, volunteer workers will operate into every part of the county.

Permanent headquarters have been established at 308 Ivy street. The space was donated by Armand May.

The southern chairman of the committee is Dr. Frank Graham, president of the University of North Carolina. Each state is responsible to a policy board with headquarters at Chapel Hill, N. C.

College Heads To Hold Parley
Heads of three Atlanta colleges will go to Washington, D. C., Thursday for a conference with educators and government officials on the part colleges are to play in the national defense program. The conference was called by the National Committee on Education and Defense.

Those who will attend include J. E. McDaniel and Dr. M. L. Brittain, of Georgia Tech; Dr. George M. Sparks, director of the Georgia Evening College, and Dr. Harvey M. Cox and Dean Purks, of Emory University.

Sent by the United States Fish and Wildlife Service, three boats have been out in Bering sea to gain practical information for developing an American crab meat industry, where Alaska King crab abound.

If you wish to participate in the committee program, tear out this blank and mail it to headquarters.

The Army IN GEORGIA

Major General William H. Wilson has been assigned to command of Camp Stewart, Hinesville, Ga., it was announced yesterday.

General Wilson, a native of Mount Vernon, N. Y., is a veteran of the World War, accompanying the 7th Regiment, Coast Artillery, to France in August, 1917, and serving with the regiment until December, 1917, when he was detailed as artillery inspector of the 30th Brigade.

In that capacity, he accompanied the first units of the American railway artillery to go into action against the enemy in February, 1918.

He also served in Hawaii. General Wilson is holder of the Distinguished Service Medal, Spanish War Service medal, Philippine campaign medal, victory medal, with clasps for Meuse-Argonne and defensive sector; Belgian Order of the Crown, French Legion of Honor and the Italian Order of St. Maurice and St. Lazarus.

General Wilson assumed command of the First Artillery district, Boston, Mass., June, 1938.

SIX ATLANTA BOYS DUE TO GET WINGS
Six Atlantans are expected to graduate from the Air Corps Basic Flying School at Montgomery, Ala., about February 8, it was announced yesterday by Lieutenant Colonel Aubrey Hornsby, commanding officer.

The youths are Glenn T. White, Thomas R. Cook, Edward M. Nichols, Ralph N. Cagle, Maurice F. Hooper and Carl E. Pennington, who were appointed flying cadets last September. Prior to arrival at the basic flying school, the Atlantans attended the primary school at Jackson, Miss.

FOURTH CORPS AREA MAKES ASSIGNMENTS
The following assignments were announced yesterday at Fourth Corps area headquarters:

Colonel Richard H. Kimball, U. S. A., retired, now at Chattanooga, placed on active duty with rank of major and assigned to District C, CCC, Fort Oglethorpe, Georgia.

Lieutenant Colonel Newton W. Speece, Infantry, detailed to duty with the Inspector General, Fourth Corps Area, and relieved from duty as Infantry instructor, Minnesota.

Turnstile Put In School Here For British Aid

Peacock Student Dissatisfied at Slow Increase of Coins.

A young man with a flare for business and a keen sense of fundraising is John McEachern, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. N. McEachern, of 3541 Tuxedo road, N. W.

Dissatisfied with the slow increase of coins dropping into the Aid to Britain jar that was placed in the Peacock school, John, being a man of action, decided to do something about it. With a saw and hammer, a few scraps of lumber and some odd nails he fashioned a turnstile. After the hasty application of paint, young McEachern placed his turnstile at the entrance to the school lunchroom. Now all who pass must chip in a coin for British relief.

Order Allows Larger Hotel Picket Line

Number Increased From Four to Six by Etheridge.

Judge Paul S. Etheridge of Fulton superior court yesterday increased from four to six the number of pickets which may parade in front of the Atlanta hotel where a strike is in progress as he modified a temporary restraining order forbidding illegal picketing.

Application for the modification was filed by Albert Gossett, president of the Atlanta Federation of Trades.

The restraining order resulted from a petition filed by J. Will Yon, operator of the hotel, who contended that "strikers, their sympathizers and confederates" had gathered in large numbers about the hotels and attempted to "intimidate" other employees.

The temporary injunction was directed against Local 851, Hotel and Restaurant Employees International Alliance and the Bartenders' International League of America.

Hearing on the permanent injunction was set for February 14.

um, of Atlanta; James L. H. Sanders, of Dahlonega, and Charles E. Williams Jr., of Devereaux.

OFFICERS ORDERED TO GEORGIA POSTS
Army orders issued yesterday at Washington included the following transfers:

Lieutenant Colonel John M. Fray, Field Artillery, Fort Bragg to Atlanta; Lieutenant Colonel Herman J. Lambert, dental corps, Hawaiian Department to Macon, Ga.; and Captain Joseph Rose, Medical Corps, Barksdale Field, La., to Americus, Ga.

21,000 MORE GUARDSMEN TO BE MOBILIZED MONDAY
Nearly 21,000 men from National Guard units in New York, Alabama, South Carolina and Georgia will be mobilized next Monday and moved to Camp Stewart, at Hinesville.

All field artillery units, the list includes 102d, 207th, 209th, 212th from New York; the 104th from Alabama; the 101st from Georgia, and the 107th from South Carolina.

Georgia National Guardsmen will be taken from units in Atlanta, Savannah, Bainbridge and Hinesville.

38 Dane Ships May Be Freed To Aid Britain

250,000 Tons Lying Idle in U. S. Ports Waits Release Order.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—(AP)—The World Telegram said today that 38 Danish ships—totaling 250,000 tons—now lying idle in American ports soon would be released to carry cargoes for Great Britain, subject to the approval by the United States government.

In addition, the paper continued, it was believed 20 other vessels, totaling 200,000 tons, in South American ports, would be similarly released.

The paper went on to say that it had learned through "a reliable Norwegian source" that a group of Danes in England had been working with Prime Minister Churchill to set up a temporary Danish government to be known as the "National Danish Council."

It would be this body, the paper related, which would assume responsibility for the release of the vessels.

Han Isbrandtsen, head of the Isbrandtsen-Moller Line, American agents for many of the Danish ship owners, was quoted by the paper as saying that "I am very hopeful that the confusion will be cleared up."

Manhattan Expected To Be Refloated Soon
NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—(AP)—The liner Manhattan, aground off West Palm Beach, Fla., probably will be refloated within two days, according to information received today by the United States Line from company officials on the scene.

Salvage workers today pumped water from a hold in her bow to lift her over a hump separating the ship from deep water.

TOUGH COUGHS

Roy Robert, Doctor Hobby's Pioneer Radio Newsman, Dies

Former Commentator Served on Staff of Constitution. Body Will Be Taken to Nashville for Final Rites.

Roy Robert, one of Atlanta's pioneer radio news commentators, and for several years a member of The Constitution news staff, was found dead in his room in a downtown hotel late yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Paul Donehoo, Fulton county coroner, conducted a preliminary investigation, expressing the opinion that he had probably died while asleep.

Robert had been in bad health for sometime, and was dismissed from the United States Veterans' hospital only a week ago. He had not been actively engaged in newspaper work for some time.

For several years, Robert was The Constitution's radio reporter, and his news programs were a headline feature over radio station WGST.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Leila H. Robert, of 121 Greenwood circle, Decatur; three sisters, Mrs. Carolyn Hancock, Mrs. Beulah Colley and Mrs. Charles Stowell, all of Decatur; and by a brother, G. W. Robert, of Jackson, Miss. The body was removed to the chapel of H. M. Patterson & Son, where an inquest will be held today.

Farmer Sees Lights of City For First Time

59-Year-Old Man Visits Night Club, Attends Stage Show.

By CAROLYN MCKENZIE.

Sitting in an old cane-bottom chair, in a basement of an over-occupied house, with a grandchild on either knee, a sandy-haired man with light blue eyes feels the year-lines around his brow shape into reminiscent laughs as he tells them of the time he saw Atlanta night life.

He is 59-year-old Brother Richard Floyd, a tenant farmer from Franklin county, an Ichabod Crane type who can tell you everything about fertilizers, cows, hogs, and cotton—but he'd never seen the lights before this week.

His work-worn hands, specked with age, tighten around his grandchildren's arms as the way they've often grasped a plow handle, as he tells them about seeing his first street car, riding an elevator for the first time, seeing the bright lights for the first time in his life, looking at his first stage show, newsreel, and attending his first night club.

All-New Adventure.
This all happened last week when, on one bright afternoon around 5 o'clock, I found the old gentleman sitting in the front room of his daughter's two-room apartment on Ethyl street. I asked him to have dinner with me, to see a show, and to see Atlanta's night life. This was an all-new venture to him and at first he said:

"Well, I reckon I better not go tonight."

But I insisted, his daughter insisted, and we persuaded him to go. He took off his new blue overalls, put on his Sunday suit, brushed his sandy-colored hair, and his eyes began to beam. He owned an automobile, never driven one, and frequently goes from his home into three-mile-distant Lavonia on foot. Sometimes he drives a wagon. We tuned in the radio to some fast-moving jump-live and he liked it.

On our way to town, the conversation drifted to "ailments," and he explained he didn't have any teeth because no dentist around his section could fit him. About that time, we neared Morningside, the lights were on, and his eyes began to beam. He'd never seen such lights before and when I explained that that was only a sample of what he would see on Peachtree, he said:

"Yessum, I reckon so, but they sho are pretty."

Brother Richard is a dirt farmer. He was born on a farm, reared on a farm, and has never known any life but farming. He has 10 children, eight of whom are married, and 11 grandchildren—all of them love farming.

He came to Atlanta once before, he was 20 years old, and with just a "bunch of us boys." That visit was for only one afternoon and night so he really didn't see the town. But he has seen it now.

Stopped at WGST.
Our first stop down town was at WGST, where he listened in on a rehearsal of the Just Home Folks program. Then we went to the Paramount theater to see the show and witness a stage performance from back stage. He met Ted Lewis. The bandmaster played a tune on his clarinet for him, and he looked through the curtains with awe. He saw a newsreel of the presidential inauguration—the first newsreel he'd ever seen—a comic short which amused him no end, and a feature picture which caused him to sit on the edge of his seat throughout the performance.

Then we walked up Peachtree to the Spanish room. Almost as soon as we were seated he explained that he'd never danced, didn't allow his daughters to

Willkie's Tour Is Cut Short To Visit King

American Cheered and Honored With 'Red Rose of Lancaster.'

MANCHESTER, England, Feb. 3.—(P)—Kissed, cheered and honored with the "red rose of Lancaster," Wendell L. Willkie cut short his tour of north England's bomb-scarred industrial centers tonight to return to London for a meeting tomorrow with King George VI and Queen Elizabeth.

Willkie canceled a scheduled visit to Sheffield, famed steel manufacturing city, telegraphing the lord mayor he would be unable to appear because "unfortunately my early return to America to testify on the lease-lend bill necessitates my return to London Monday night."

He said he had been requested by the British government "for safety's sake" not to divulge the time of his departure for the United States.

The 1940 Republican presidential candidate appeared weary but in good spirits and visibly affected by what he had seen in an all-day tour of Manchester's bombed areas—a triumphal procession which found his automobile constantly flanked by shouting, cheering throngs.

"I found the answer to the question I set out to ask," he told newsmen, sitting on a table top and swinging his legs.

"The people's spirit is magnificent . . . I don't believe any nation in the world is more united in any cause than the people of the British Isles."

Willkie received the Lancaster rose before a large crowd at town hall.

9 of Georgia's Carpenters Get Congressmen Until Friday For Aid Bill To Join Union

Hugh Peterson Is Lone Foe of Measure on State Delegation.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—As debate opened in the lower house today on the administration's lease-lend bill for aid of the British, a poll of the Georgia delegation in congress showed that nine of the state's 10 representatives are in favor of the measure.

On the senate side both Senators George and Russell are committed to the bill's passage, which makes the delegation all but unanimous behind the important legislation.

Representative Hugh Peterson, of the first Georgia district, is the lone member of the state group opposing the bill.

As chairman of the foreign relations committee it will become the lot of Senator George to pilot the measure through the upper chamber after initial action by the house.

Administration leaders faced the first day of debate on the legislation fully confident of putting it through in both houses by substantial majorities.

The bill will hold the center of the legislative stage for several weeks yet. Until it is enacted little attention will be paid anything else in congress.

House leaders will bring the measure to a vote in the lower chamber by the end of this week, but less certainty exists as to the time the senate will get around to a vote.

Representative Vinson, dean of the Georgia house delegation and one of the best informed members on the parliamentary situation, is of the opinion that not more than 35 house Democrats will be found voting against the bill on the final count. He expects the administration to pick up at least 15 of these from the Republican side, which would give a substantial majority.

Engineer Blows Whistle, Saves Couple From Fire

NORCROSS, Ga., Feb. 3.—(P)—Making his regular run from Greenville, S. C., to Atlanta, Southern Railway Engineer Robert S. Elrod noticed flames spurt from a home here.

Elrod, a resident of Atlanta, slowed his freight down, gave a long fire alarm blow common to engineers.

Bill Kemp was awakened by the whistle and carried his unconscious wife to safety. He said they probably would have been burned to death if it hadn't been for the alarm.

Elrod received a medal in 1939 from President Roosevelt on recommendation of the Interstate Commerce Commission for rescuing another engineer in a train wreck near Courtenay, S. C.

Camp Gordon Hospital Workers Must Pay $50 Fee.

The employment phase of building operations on the Army's $2,800,000 general hospital at Camp Gordon was emphasized yesterday by these developments:

1. Signing-up of an unspecified number of the approximately 1,100 carpenters employed there for membership in Local 225, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, at $50 initiation fee and $2 monthly dues, as required by a notice posted by the contractors, the Griffin Construction Company, with 7 a. m. Friday as the deadline.

2. Word that John Scarborough, general representative of the Hod Carriers and Common Laborers Union, had looked over the project two weeks ago and gone to Washington, D. C., headquarters to decide what should be done about the approximately 1,000 unorganized common laborers working on the hospital.

3. Conference with Attorney Reuben Garland of a committee representing about 200 non-union carpenters now working at Camp Gordon with the possibility of injunction proceedings against the compulsory carpenter-union-membership order of the contractors.

4. Announcement by W. Lee Sorrells, union business agent, membership cards would permit holders to work anywhere in the United States and its possessions, thereby a rumor that the cards applied only to the Camp Gordon project.

5. Revelation that efforts to prevent job-selling or other petty racketeering had kept incidents down to one temporary arrest, one discharge of a foreman on suspicion and one two-hour grilling of a suspect, who since had left town.

Half Are Members.

Sorrells estimated that about half of the 1,100 carpenters were union members already, and said they were subject to penalties for working on a non-union project even though the union had not been prepared to take over full employment responsibility when the rush project was launched. He said there will be "some fines imposed."

He said $5 of the $50 initiation fee required of each carpenter went to the international union treasury and the rest was retained by the local union for expenses, salaries and similar requirements, including maintenance of an old-age home in Lakeland, Fla. The fee was increased from $40 to $50 last May 27. New members will be required to make a down payment of $18.50, when receiving a card, and give $8 weekly on the remainder.

Temporary Plan.

Employment of non-union carpenters had been a temporary expedient, it was declared by Carroll Griffin, general manager, who said the contractors had a closed-shop policy because a higher type of artisan was assured. Need for haste had brought the deviation in this instance, he declared.

Attorney Garland would not reveal immediately the plans of the protesting carpenters but said he probably would issue a statement today. Under the terms of the notice posted on the local union's small office adjoining the employment office at Camp Gordon, these men will be ineligible for employment after Friday morning.

The notice read:

"Griffin Construction Company and

"MacDougald Construction Company,

January 29, 1941.

"SPECIAL NOTICE.

"Beginning on Friday, February 7, 1941, all carpenters employed in this hospital must have a union card showing that the bearer is a member, in good standing, of the carpenter's union.

"Union headquarters for carpenters will be established near the personnel office on Peachtree road where union officials will be stationed to take applications.

"The initiation fee is $50. "The down payment on the initiation fee is $18.50 for new members and $19.50 for foreign members. The balance can be paid in weekly installments arranged with the union officials.

"This notice is posted well in advance so that employees can make arrangements to meet the necessary obligations.

"CARROLL GRIFFIN,

"General manager."

Can Get Refund.

Sorrells declared: "Any carpenter working on the job under this arrangement who is fired or laid off before he has finished paying can get his money back except the $2 charged for the 'working privilege,' just like I charge my members dues."

Officials, including Griffin, Major William E. Weghorst, the army's constructing quartermaster; Special Police Chief Pat Burke and Sorrells, said vigilance had been exercised from the beginning to prevent job-selling or employment preference for pay.

At a Minimum.

"A project of this size naturally will experience a little of it," declared Griffin. "But we feel it has been kept to a minimum."

Special operatives, supplied with $5 bills, are circulated about the project endeavoring to entrap anyone offering to obtain employment for a fee. The prices quoted by the racketeers were said to vary from $5 to $15 for a job.

The union-membership requirement will be met, Sorrells said, by his keeping open the office at the site from 7 a. m. until midnight daily until all applicants have been dealt with.

MEN FIRED AFTER PAYING FEE, SPARKMAN HEARS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—(P)—Representative Sparkman, Democrat, Alabama, remarked at a house hearing today that he had heard reports that some construction contractors building cantonments had worked new employees long enough for labor unions to collect $50 to $80 each from them and then discharged the men.

Brigadier General Brehon Somervell, the quartermaster general, who was testifying at the time, said that "we've never found evidence to support" such reports. Sparkman suggested "there ought to be a trying period" for new workers before they became union members, and Somervell agreed.

He explained, however, that the War Department's policy is to let contractors handle their own labor relations problems and to employ union or non-union men as they see fit.

House Debates 8 Governors Aid Measure; Urge Passage Approval Seen Of Lease Bill

lette, former Governor of Wisconsin, testify in opposition to the measure.

Thomas declared that enactment of the bill would lead eventually to sending American soldiers to Europe, Asia and perhaps Africa. "It is wholly improbable," he said, "that we will avoid the necessity of sending men. Indeed, this bill which you are now considering is backed almost equally by those who believe that it is a way to slide America gradually into war and by those who still believe somehow that it is the way to stop short of war."

"The greatest danger which this bill increases, not diminishes, is that we shall find ourselves in total war. The victory we should then want—that is to say the elimination of the power, not only of the Axis, but of Japan—logically requires troops; troops in Asia, troops in Europe, troops perhaps in Africa."

He scoffed at the possibility of an Axis invasion of America, declaring it would require "such an armada as the world has never seen."

The United States should be bending its energies, Thomas said, to preparation to meet economic problems which he said were certain to follow the war.

LaFollette, too, predicted the world was facing profound economic changes. Asserting that the war would bring a "financial revolution," he said "we ought to prepare for it now."

LaFollette related that Daladier, former French premier, told him in 1939 that France expected the United States to send it aid in "money, materials and men."

An objection to the administration's bill, he said, was that it would "rest in one man the decision over peace or war in this country."

Predicting enactment of the measure would lead to conveying shipments to Britain, LaFollette said it "would launch this nation on a course whose only logical outcome can be our total involvement in war in Europe."

Southern Group Wires Senator George Pledging Support.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—(P)—A telegram urging passage of the lease-lend bill was sent by eight southern governors today to Chairman George, Democrat, Georgia, of the senate foreign relations committee.

The telegram was signed by Frank M. Dixon as Governor of Alabama and chairman of the Southern Governors Conference. It said:

"The following southern governors have authorized me to urge on their behalf and on mine the passage of the lease-lend bill substantially as introduced, believing that the passage of this bill at this time is essential to the safety of the nation."

The other governors named were Burnet R. Maybank of South Carolina, J. Melville Broughton of North Carolina, Spessard L. Holland of Florida, Homer M. Adams of Arkansas, Paul B. Johnson of Mississippi, Sam H. Jones of Louisiana and James H. Price of Virginia.

U. S. Legation Clerks Held In German Prison

Americans Charged With Possessing Hostile Documents.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—(P)—A clerk and a former clerk in the American legation at Oslo have been held by German authorities since early in December, on charges of possessing documents hostile to the Norwegian government, State Department officials said tonight.

The men are Ivan Jacobsen, of Seattle, Wash., who had been employed by the legation since early last year, and Frank Nelson, a temporary employe last summer. Nelson's mother lives at St. Joseph, Mo. The American consulate in Oslo has reported that they are in good health and receiving fair treatment.

Italians Prepared For New Defeat

ROME, Feb. 3.—(P)—Italian armies strung out over war fronts hundreds of miles apart, from the Albanian mountains to Italian Somaliland in East Africa, fought tonight to hold back British and Greek forces seeking to collapse Premier Mussolini's relatively new empire.

No mention was made in today's communique of the status of the Giarabub oasis outposts on the southern Libyan front, but a dispatch in the Milicia Fascista has prepared Italians for its possible fall. Foreign reports said native Ethiopian troops were massing for a drive on Addis Ababa. There was no confirmation here, however, of the Addis Ababa reports.

Y. W. C. A. Opens Seminar Today

"Is America Behind the Eight Ball?" will be the question asked this week by Y. W. C. A. business girls from all clubs as they meet this evening and Thursday evening for a seminar on "Vitalizing Democracy." This spring seminar is an annual event when questions are asked and answered.

Headed by Miss Willie Lou London, interclub council chairman, the seminar takes the place of two regular club meetings and will be lightened by an opening skit group singing led by Miss Betsy Dupuy and a surprise party.

Dr. Philip Davidson, of Agnes Scott College faculty, will conclude forum discussions with a summarization of major points brought out in the various groups. "Christianity for a Vital Democracy" is being planned by Miss Evie Mae Cagle and Miss Juanita Scarborough, with Mrs. Lester Rumble serving as resource.

"Economic Security for a Vital Democracy" is headed by Miss Julia White and Miss Emily Roberts, with Miss Eliza King, resource. Miss Joan Thompson and Miss Evelyn Hogg, with Jack Tolbert are planning "National Defense for a Vital Democracy." "Friendship in the Americas" will be discussed on points brought out by Miss Virginia Little and Miss Frances Kocher, with the aid of Chess Abernathy, of Marietta.

On Thursday evening the resource leaders will hold a panel on all four topics. Departmental leaders assisting with the program are Mrs. Tommie Sherrill, Mrs. Rosalyn Buford and Miss Ethel Reese, opening skit, portraying the work of the Y. W. C. A.; Miss Thelma Towns and Miss Eugenia Dozier, surprise party; Mrs. Lois Roy, Miss Lois Bruce, publicity, and Miss Marcelia Street, program.

For Miss Davis.

Misses Evelyn Woods and Frances Lancaster were co-hostesses at a bunco party and handkerchief shower at the home of Miss Selma Davis, whose marriage to Oliver Bruce Barbour will take place February 22.

Decorations and refreshments carried out the valentine motif.

Miss Ackermann To Marry Remus Harris in Cincinnati

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Feb. 3.—St. Agnes Catholic church will provide the setting for the marriage of Miss Frieda Marie Ackermann, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Peter Ackermann, of this city, to Remus Anthony Harris, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lucien Harris, Sr., of Atlanta, Ga., which takes place Tuesday morning, February 4 at 9:30 o'clock. The ceremony will be solemnized at a private nuptial mass with Rev. Monsignor Burke officiating. A musical program will be presented by Miss Edelia Mackzum, organist.

The handsome altar will be simply decorated with vases of white flowers and lighted candles held in seven-branched candelabra.

Mrs. George W. Wilson Jr. will be her sister's matron of honor and only attendant. She will wear a spring model of aqua crepe with matching accessories and a shoulder cluster of orchids.

The lovely bride will be given in marriage by George W. Wilson Jr., and they will be met at the altar by the groom and Rudolph A. Ackermann, brother of the bride, who will act as best man.

The bride's brunette beauty will be further enhanced by the dusty pink ensemble she will wear. The dress is made on simple lines and will be worn with a matching redingote, fashioned full-length and trimmed in pas-

Miss Ewing and Her Fiance Reveal Wedding Personnel

Of interest today is the announcement of the masculine attendants for the wedding of Miss Martha Ewing and John Eastland Jr., which will be brilliantly solemnized on March 15 at 8:30 o'clock in the evening at the First Presbyterian church.

Bridesmaids for the nuptials were announced recently. George Weldon, of Louisville, Ky., will be Mr. Eastland's best man, and groomsmen will be Thornton Green, of Winston-Salem, N. C.; William Candler Jr., Allan Dodd, of Louisville, Ky.; Gene Driver, of Charlotte, N. C.; Alvin Gross, of Louisville, Ky.; Frank Graham, John S. Evans and Roy Fricks.

Ushers will be W. N. Cochran, Howell Ross Hanson, Dr. Homer Davis, Hugh Dobbins, Charles Ewing, Herbert Miles, Dr. George L. Cooke, of Tampa, Fla., and Boyd N. Ragsdale, of LaGrange.

Miss Ewing shared honors yesterday with Miss Mary Mc-

Gaughey, another popular bride-elect, at the bridge luncheon given by Miss Lillian Klein at her home on Peachtree Battle avenue.

A profusion of daffodils beautified the home, and Mrs. E. W. Klein assisted her daughter in receiving the 20 invited guests.

Miss Bradford Weds Prince Perdue.

The marriage of Miss Charlotte Bradford and Prince Perdue, of Fitzgerald and Atlanta, took place

December 14, with the Rev. Horace Smith officiating.

Mr. and Mrs. Perdue are residing at 540 Moreland avenue, northeast.

Among the parties honoring Mrs. Perdue was the miscellaneous shower given on Thursday evening by Miss Rheta Blair at her home on McPherson avenue.

Guests were Misses Julia Wyatt, Sarah and Helen Crutchfield, Martha McNeely, Agnes Allums, Mildred Robinson, Margaret, Juanita and Barbara Bradford, Marcel Porter, Helen Boone, Vivian Blair and Mrs. B. E. Blair.

From old Cape Cod comes the recipe for these codfish balls served with cranberry sauce.

MY DAY: Organizations in District of Columbia

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, Sunday.—On Friday afternoon I attended a Girl Scout ceremony in the D. A. R. national headquarters. This was a birthday celebration at which they presented the work of their service bureaus in tableaux which showed what the girls can do in national defense. The climax was reached when they handed me a blank check, drawn to the order of the people of the United States, on the hours of their service.

In the evening I went to a meeting called by a group of people who wanted to consider the advisability of forming a municipal assembly in the District of Columbia. I was astonished at the number of organizations existing in the district. Many of them are civic organizations which are federated and which, if they agreed on any one thing, ought to be able to bring a great deal of influence to bear on the district matters.

Since I am only a temporary resident of the district, I feel that I have very little right to take part in anything affecting the citizens of the district, except as the district is of importance and interest to any citizen of the United States. Where the district institutions are concerned, I have always felt that all citizens should take an interest in having here models for the rest of the country; both for the value it would be to us in carrying back suggestions to our own states and communities, and because of the service we could render to observers from other countries. I have always found that I could learn things from other countries and would like to feel that we offered here our best in every field in the hope that we might be useful.

The people of the district must decide whether a municipal assembly would be a good instrument for them. I was certainly impressed by the number of organizations there seem to be in the district, and the small results they seem to achieve.

Yesterday Mrs. Montgomery Angell and I, with her two children, made a trip to Monticello. They stopped first at Mt. Vernon, and then I joined them. We were fortunate in having a beautiful day, which made a picnic lunch possible. After visiting Jefferson's home, which is always a joy to me, the children came back to Washington, while Mrs. Angell and I went to Richmond, Va., to attend a meeting of the newly organized Southern Electoral Reform League. Try Codfish For Your Main Dish

By Sally Saver.

A delicious deep-sea meal ready to serve in the twinkling of an eye is something with unusual appeal. Fish is a fine food; rich in so many nutritional elements that it should be served often. Seafoods contain important proteins for muscle building, plus minerals not found in abundance in other foods.

For those of us who live inland, it is something of a surprise to find that there are so many ways to serve fish. From Cape Cod in Massachusetts comes a recipe for delectable codfish balls served with a cranberry sauce. It's an old recipe, long associated with the Cape and its background of sturdy ships and hardy fishermen bringing in the catch, but its rich flavor and tartness makes it as delightful anywhere, even in places far from shore.

Codfish Balls with Cranberry Sauce.

1 cup prepared codfish
2 cups hot mashed potato
1 tablespoon butter
1-8 teaspoon pepper
Salt
1 egg
1 can jellied cranberry sauce

Beat the codfish into the mashed potatoes; add butter and pepper and salt to taste. Add the beaten egg. Place fat in kettle and shape mixture into balls. Place balls in basket and when fat is just beginning to smoke, lower basket into kettle. This method results in crisp and crunchy balls. Or the mixture may be shaped in cakes and browned in a skillet. Drain on brown paper. Whether you pan-fry or deep-fat-fry, fry only until a delicate golden brown. Mash the cranberry sauce and heat to boiling. Serve the sauce over the fish balls. Serves 6.

An easy and practical dish for a quick lunch is this combination of codfish and corn.

Escalloped Cod and Corn.
1 can prepared codfish
Buttered bread crumbs
2 eggs
1 can whole-kernel corn
Salt and pepper to taste

Beat eggs thoroughly and mix with the fish. Spread a layer of this mixture in a buttered baking dish, then a layer of corn; season lightly and dot with bits of butter. Repeat alternate layer of fish and corn until all of mixture is used. Sprinkle buttered bread crumbs on top. Bake in hot oven (400 F.) until brown. Serves 6.

Ginger Wants an Academy Award

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 3.—Ginger Rogers is concentrating on winning the Academy award, for "Kitty Foyle." She has toiled seven years in pictures—just for the pleasure of acquiring an Oscar. She deserves it, too.

George Raft is trying to get Virginia Field, his latest heart-throb, a part in his next picture. I saw them at the fights a few nights ago, and Virginia was letting George explain the hot poling boxing. She used to go regularly to the fights with Richard Greene and probably knows as much as Raft does of the gentle art of punching.

Lana Turner, with hay-colored hair and a long, gorgeous silver fox coat, was also there—with Tony Martin. Lupe Vélez tried to hurl herself into the ring to fight for the Mexican boxer she favored.

Garbo has asked her good friend Lady Mendl to decorate her new Brentwood home with her honey-moon locale after Greta becomes Mrs. Gaylor.

Hauser... Mickey Rooney invited Shirley Temple to a get-together party with some of his friends at his ranch. Mrs. Temple couldn't make up her mind about letting Shirley go. The problem was solved when Mickey caught cold, and the party was called off. Gary Cooper, who is in his late thirties, gets Joan Leslie, just 16, for his leading lady in "Sergeant York." This is a wrong age combination—and unfair to Gary.

The Judy Garland-Dave Rose wedding will be very soon now. In fact, they may beat Deanna Durbin and Vaughn Paul to the altar. Did you know that Judy and Deanna started their screen lives together in the short, "Every Sunday Afternoon"? Paulette Goddard is going to Sun Valley for a bit of skiing after she finishes "Pot o' Gold." I don't know how true this story is, but a friend of mine swears he saw one of the Chaplin boys at a street corner selling bottles of champagne from the Chaplin cellar—at twenty-five cents a bottle. And was he selling them!

Hollywood is again trying to lure William Saroyan. The first time "Wild William" came to Hollywood it was to save $900 so he could go to New Orleans and write a play. After many weeks of toil he accumulated the money and bought his ticket for New Orleans. He had a little time to kill, went to the races, put the entire $900 on a horse and—lost it!

Natural Food Sources of Vitamin D

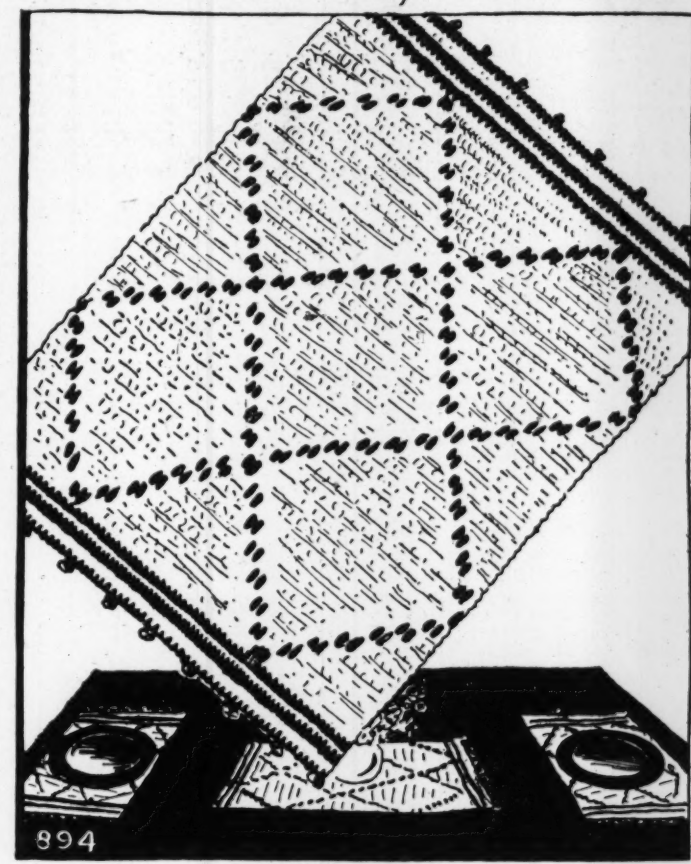

By Dr. William Brady.

Lists of foods rich in calcium or phosphorus may be of some use in planning a diet to provide adequate daily intake of these elements for the building and maintenance of healthy teeth and gums, but such a diet at best can hardly bring about cure or arrest of chronic gingivitis, pyorrhea or degeneration of teeth and gums when these manifestations of atrophy from long malnutrition have become evident.

Natural food sources of vitamin D are the cream or fat of milk or butter, yolk of egg, canned sardines, canned salmon, oysters and virtually no other natural food in significant amount. Fish liver oil is rich in vitamin D—a teaspoonful of cod liver oil, for instance, contains as much vitamin D as the yolks of five eggs; on the other hand two drops of solution of irradiated ergosterol in neutral oil contain more vitamin D than a whole teaspoonful of fish liver oil, and this is tasteless. Irradiating ergosterol (a fat-like substance occurring in various foods and in the human skin) with ultraviolet light of certain wave lengths converts the ergosterol in viosterol which is vitamin D. Most physicians advise feeding every infant a few drops of such solution or even a spoonful of fish liver oil, daily, to insure enough vitamin D for the growing infant's requirements. Dentists should advise parents to give young children some such daily ration of vitamin D to promote development of sound teeth.

To the best of my knowledge one synthetic vitamin D or solution of viosterol in oil is as satisfactory for medicinal use as another, although it behooves every dentist and every physician who has occasion to advise patients to use vitamin D to know which preparation is economical, for there is a wide difference in the cost of the numerous vitamin D preparations available. Unit for unit they're all the same, but penny for penny they vary extraordinarily.

Woman's Quiz

Q. Please give directions for cleaning light-colored window shades.

A. Spread a sheet on the floor, unroll the shade and scrub it with magnesia and water, using a soft cloth. After treating one side, turn the shade over and clean it in the same way. This method removes the dirt satisfactorily and renews the shade at a cost of about 10 cents. Shades may be renewed also by stretching them on a flat surface and giving them a coat of flat paint.

Q. Please give general directions for cleaning a kitchen stove.

A. Gas and electric stoves are usually finished with enamel, which is easily kept clean with a cloth wrung out of soapy water. Since enamel is a glass-like coating, it will crack if cold water is used while the enamel is hot. Abrasives roughen the surface, and only the finest, such as kelp-spar, should be used. For both gas and electric stoves, use a cloth soaked in kerosene to prevent rust. Greasy burners should be removed before washing. Wiping cast iron gas burners and oven racks with a light mineral oil or kerosene helps to prevent rust. Greasy burners should be boiled in a soda solution.

Q. In contract bridge, what strength should a hand have to bid two in a suit in response to partner's opening bid?

A. The minimum requirements are a biddable suit and two honor tricks.

POINTS FOR PARENTS

Dance Well And Assure Popularity

"I'd rather dance a waltz with you than anyone on earth!" What wouldn't you give to hear such praise from your favorite dancing partner?

Well, you can, if you'll polish your steps at home with directions and footprint diagrams.

Then, good-bye to saying "excuse me" at every other step, to getting into a fearful stew before a dance—wondering whether you'll be able to keep up with your partner.

That graceful dipping motion that the really expert dancers get in the waltz is all a matter of learning how. On the first accent of each measure you simply take an extra-long step, bending the supporting knee slightly to help you keep your balance.

Now try it, using our diagram for the basic waltz step. Count 1—Take along step forward on the left foot. 2—Place right foot a short distance to side of left. 3—Close slowly with left foot. 4—Take a long step back on right foot. 5—Place left a short distance to side of right. 6—Close slowly with right foot.

And of course you want to become an expert at the Conga, rumba and other smart "cave society" favorites!

You never lack for dates when you can dance well. Our 40-page booklet, SOCIAL DANCING SELF-TAUGHT, gives diagrams and directions for the Conga, rumba, tango and Lindy Hop—as well as for the waltz, fox-trot, Westchester and shag. Has basic steps and variations, pointers on leading and following.

Marriage and Christening Featured in Double Service

... IMMEDIATELY AFTER the morning worship at St. Luke's church on Sunday, Dr. John Moore Walker, the rector, officiated at a second interesting service which combined a wedding with a christening ceremony. Lovely Barbara Decker Willard, of Atlanta and Skyland, N. C., became the bride of William H. Buchanan, and immediately afterwards she acted as godmother at the baptism of her small niece, six-week-old Anne Kenan Coulton.

Barbara, the younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Blount Willard Sr., of Atlanta and Skyland, N. C., was given in marriage by her father, and her brother, Dozier P. Willard, served as Mr. Buchanan's best man.

The bride chose for her marriage a smart costume combining a dusty rose crepe frock with a blue coat, hat and accessories. Completing the ensemble was a handsome scarf of maroon and a shoulder cluster of orchids.

Anne Kenan, the baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Coulton, wore with her christening robe an heirloom cap of Brussels lace that is over 125 years old. It was worn by her maternal grandfather, Mr. Willard, at his christening, and has also been worn by numerous other members of the family. In addition to Mrs. Buchanan, the baby's other godparents were her uncle, Thomas Blount Willard Jr., and Mrs. C. L. Longino.

Following the interesting double service, which was witnessed only by members of the two families, the bride and groom left for a honeymoon in New Orleans, after which they will go to Jackson, Miss., for residence. Mr. Buchanan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Buchanan, of Atlanta.

... A GAY TIME is in store for Tom Jr. and Evelyn Daniel, who will leave the latter part of the week for Pine Knoll, the Daniel plantation on the outskirts of Albany. The popular couple has planned a house party to honor their cousin, Lieutenant Henry Myers, who is at present visiting his mother, Mrs. Irving Myers, in Tifton. Heavily, you know, is a pilot on a well-known commercial line and his visits back to Georgia are few and far between.

The house party will be very gay, for, in addition to the festivities planned, the famous field trials will take place next weekend. The Albany territory is famous for hunting and it is fast becoming a social center, according to Mrs. Tom Daniel Sr., who with Mr. Daniel returned yesterday from a two-week visit to Pine Knoll. The George Fortune Ryans, of New York, have a new place there and during the past week they had as their guests Mr. and Mrs. Erick Whitney, also of New York. Another New York group were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Potter at their home. Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Ellis, of Springfield, Mass., were among other easterners attending the informal cocktail parties, hunt breakfasts and outdoor affairs at which Mr. and Mrs. Daniel were popular attendants.

... A GOLD CRESCENT with three stars suspended above it, duplicating the pin of the Tri Delta sorority, will form the emblem through which Tri Delta members will step tomorrow evening when they entertain at a formal dance on the University of Georgia campus in Athens.

Sara Farmer, of this city, who is president of the group, will head the colorful leadout with Sig Owen, of LaGrange, and white evening gowns will enhance the beauty of Tri Delta activities and pledges.

Several alumnae members of the sorority will motor to Athens to attend the dance, which will take place in Woodruff Hall, where for a number of years co-eds and their partners have "tripped the light fantastic."

Atlanta members of Tri Delta include Patricia Ann Stodghill, Polly Harris, Julia Farmer, Jessie Ruffin, Mariana Ross, Gene Walker, Aline Cooke and Ann Edge.

... IT IS the usual custom for a bride to receive a set of silver as a wedding gift from her family, but to receive THREE is certainly out of the ordinary, especially when each is rich in family sentiment. Such, however, is the good fortune of Mrs. Richard Wood, the former Caroline Healey, whose marriage took place January 18.

One set of silver was inherited from the bride's great-grandmother, Pamela Revere Westlake, a member of the Paul Revere family, and is over 100 years old. Another of the sets belonged to Caroline's great-grandmother, Mrs. H. R. Healey, of Metuchen, N. J., whose wedding certificate she also possesses, as well as that of her great-great-grandmother. The third set belonged to her own mother and father, Mrs. Clarence Moor and R. G. Healey, of New Jersey.

Among other interesting presents received from her mother's side of the family and from Mrs. W. E. Kehoe by Caroline are numerous handsome linens from France, Hungary and Scotland. Incidentally, when Caroline and Richard were married, the ceremony was solemnized by the latter's father, Rev. C. E. Wood. And the bride chose for her only ornament a diamond and pearl lavalier that had been worn by her mother on her wedding day.

Although she hailed from New Jersey, where she graduated from the New Jersey College for Women, Caroline made her home here prior to her marriage, her personal charm and friendliness having won for her a wide circle of admiring friends.

Her artistic gifts include music, which she studied under Leo Braun, and dramatics, which she has furthered as a member of the Theater Guild. She has been heard in a number of one-act plays presented by the guild over station WATL.

Caroline and Richard are welcome additions to Atlanta's young married contingent and are residing at 820 Piedmont avenue.

... CLEVER INVITATIONS have been issued by members of the Atlanta Library Club and the Junior Members' Round Table for the formal dinner meeting they will hold Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Palm Room of the Georgian Terrace hotel. Mrs. Angus Perskerson, who under the pen name of Medora Field, wrote the best-selling mystery novel, "Who Killed Aunt Maggie?" will be the guest speaker for the event.

The ingenious invitations announcing this fact are in the shape of a red book, the cover bearing the nature and time of the event. Inside is the following rhyme:

"Would you like to write a thriller?
Have you published a best seller?
Only wished it? Only dreamed?
Kindly heed as we extend

Mrs. Harold McKenzie, Mrs. Edward Worcester and Mrs. William Bailey Lamar will pour coffee.

Others assisting in entertaining will be Georg Lindner, Paul Lovejoy, Mrs. Alex King Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hutcheson, Mrs. Herbert Hodges, Mrs. Leroy Loemaker, Mrs. W. R. Weems, Mrs. Maurice Siegler, Mrs. Robert Guy, Mrs. William Hudson Jr., Robert Harrison, Misses Senta Mueller, Ruth Dabney Smith, and Laurelei Tait. Seated in the president's box at the concert with Mrs. Harold Cooleage, president of the Atlanta Music Club, and Mr. Cooleage will be Dr. Robert Osburn, Robert Harrison, Mrs. Charlotte B. Woolford, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Laws, Miss Anne Grove O'Callaghan and A. Buckingham Simpson.

Prominent Matrons To Assist At Wedding Reception Today

Among today's interesting announcements is that of prominent matrons who will assist in entertaining at the reception at which Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Chapman will entertain today at the Piedmont Driving Club following the marriage of their daughter, Miss Julia Chapman, to Ray Retterer, of Cleveland, Ohio.

They are Mesdames Ward Wirt Edwin Marshall Jr., James Cheever, William H. Barnwell, Lee Groves, Freeman Strickland, Harry Indell, Charles F. Evans, C. F. Roddey and Misses Christine and Lucille Manning.

The reception will be an informal affair assembling members of the bridegroom's wedding parties and out-of-town wedding guests.

Sunday evening Edward Chapman Jr. was host at a cocktail party at the Piedmont Driving Club in compliment to his sister and her fiancé, and Miss Mary McGaughey, whose marriage to Ellis Gay will be solemnized on February 10. The affair took place in the upstairs dining room of the club, and was enlivened by the music of Graham Jackson.

Guests included members of the bridegroom's wedding parties and a few additional friends of the host.

An elaborate party of last evening was the supper at which Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Evans entertained at their Club drive residence honoring Miss Chapman and Mr. Retterer. The party followed the wedding rehearsal, and assembled 35 guests, including members of the wedding party, immediate families and out-of-town guests for the couple's marriage today.

The dining table was overlaid with a lace cloth and feathered for its centerpiece a miniature bride and groom standing before an arch of ferns, at either side of which were miniature pedestal baskets of white narcissi and snapdragons. A white satin aisle extended the length of the table.

Crowley, Anderson, Leahy Mentioned as Successors to Layden

All in the Game

BY JACK TROY

Story Confirmed Confirmation of an exclusive Constitution story came with the resignation from Notre Dame of Coach Elmer Layden, who has accepted a fine paying job as commissioner of pro football.

Just after the Sugar Bowl game, it was reported in this corner that things were due to pop at Notre Dame; that the famous Irish school had scouts at New Orleans studying the qualifications of Frank Leahy, coach of Boston College. Well, Boston College managed to hold on to Leahy, but only after offering him a five-year contract calling for a substantial increase in salary.

It was written, at the time, that Notre Dame, acme of the Catholic schools in education as well as athletics, was not satisfied to have the Notre Dame system prospering everywhere except at Notre Dame.

I was not writing on a hunch, but on definite information obtained in New Orleans.

There is no doubt that in accepting the post as commissioner of professional football, Elmer Layden is benefiting himself and his family financially. But it is to be assumed that his Notre Dame contract which expired last Saturday was not renewed. Else he would have had to renounce the contract to accept the professional job.

Layden, called the "Thin Man" by intimates, is a most capable football executive and a Notre Dame immortal, having been the spark plug of the Four Horsemen. But he had not proven an acceptable successor to Rockne at Notre Dame. It was well known among his associates that he was being severely criticized after this last season.

One half of the exclusive Constitution story is now confirmed. Elmer Layden no longer is coach at Notre Dame. And the Irish still would like to have the soft-speaking Leahy.

Big Boost Layden is not the first big-time coach to go into professional football, but his entry as commissioner is bound to prove a tremendous boost to the game. It adds a great deal of prestige. Layden is expected to become a sort of Landis of pro football.

Incidentally, Layden accepted for $20,000 the same job which a sports editor, Arch Ward, of the Chicago Tribune, turned down at $25,000. Ward also was offered a five-year contract.

Watch the professional game continue to grow. It will be headed south before long. A league will be in operation before another season is out. By 1942 the game may be growing in Dixie.

It will take a lot longer for the pros to get a foothold below the Mason and Dixon line because of the college influence. But perfection always attracts in any field.

And a perfectionist type of play is what has proved the big attraction in the east. Fans figure they are seeing All-Americans in action even when the substitutes enter the games.

He's Got It If what Bitsy Grant says about this Frank Kovacs (who has just won another Florida tennis title by beating Bobby Riggs) is true, the fabled character with the seven-league boots was a novice. "It's just a game of ping-pong with him," Bitsy declared before shoving off to play in the Palm Beach tournament in which Kovacs rules the favorite.

"Honestly, the game's that easy for that long-striding son-of-a-gun. He's taller than Tilden and just about as slender. He's all arms and legs, and a killer-diller."

"Watching him you'd swear he could stand on one side of the court and reach over and return balls on the other side. He can stand in the back court and play the net. I tell you his arms and legs must be made of rubber," Grant insisted.

And to think Grant left here wanting to play Kovacs just to see for himself how good he really is. But don't forget

Elmer Layden New Pro Czar Of Grid Sport

Contract of Irish Leader Ran Out Saturday; Leahy Signs.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Feb. 3.—(P)—Students and faculty members alike were amazed to learn tonight that Notre Dame had lost Elmer Layden, its popular football coach.

Few apparently knew any change in the athletic setup was likely until the announcement was made that Layden had resigned to become commissioner of professional football. The contract of the one-time member of the Four Horsemen ran out Saturday and had not been renewed.

The announcement immediately precipitated a campus-wide guessing game as to the identity of the new head coach. Most prominent mentioned were Eddie Anderson, Iowa; Jimmy Crowley, Fordham; Harry Stuhldreher, Wisconsin; and Frank Leahy, Boston College.

The Rev. Hugh O'Donnell, C. C. S., president of the school, was not available tonight, but it was believed he would have a statement soon, possibly tomorrow. Since spring football practice starts soon it is considered likely a successor to Layden will be named soon.

Leahy Signs 5-Year Contract With B. C.

HAVERHILL, Mass., Feb. 3.—(P)—Frank Leahy, who guided the 1940 Boston College eleven through an undefeated season and a Sugar Bowl victory over Tennessee, has been signed to a new five-year contract at a substantial salary increase, Graduate Director John P. Curley announced tonight.

Curley's announcement was made to newsmen during a testimonial banquet by fellow citizens to Gene Goodreault, regular right end on the Boston College eleven, and was precipitated by rumors that the brilliant young head coach would move on to his Alma Mater, Notre Dame, to fill the post vacated by Elmer Layden.

Curley said Leahy's original contract, which had another year to run, was discarded and the new agreement signed at a conference today at Boston College.

Before making his announcement Curley communicated with the Rev. William J. Murphy, S. J., president of Boston College, and apparently obtained permission to make public the signing of Leahy to a long-term contract.

Leahy arrived late at the banquet and was surprised that the announcement of his new contract had been made, expecting the news to be given out in Boston later in the week. After a brief conference with Curley, he declined to comment on the new contract and, asked if he had been approached about the Notre Dame position, said:

"I have nothing to say regarding that."

BOZEMAN WINS.

CHICAGO, Feb. 3.—(P)—Undeclared Jay Bozeman, brilliant, young Vallejo (Cal.) cue star, required only 27 innings today to notch his ninth consecutive triumph in the world's three-cushion billiard tournament.

Georgia Has Switched to Role Of Favorite Over Tech Quintet

Home Court Advantage Gives Improved Bulldogs Edge Friday Night; Close Series Forecast.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY

Odds on a basketball game change almost as often as the weather. Witness the coming battle between Georgia Tech and Georgia Friday night in Athens.

Before the Jackets met Auburn and Georgia played Tennessee last Saturday, one just didn't know what to expect, but now it looks as if the Bulldogs will be favored because of a home court advantage.

There is no doubt, Elmer Lampe's club goes great on Woodruff Hall floor. It has lost only two games at home in over two years, the first to Tennessee last year and an overtime contest to South Carolina this season.

And since the Bulldogs walked the Vols so convincingly, its pretty hard to see how Tech can win. In Atlanta later on in the season it will be a different story, of course. But Friday's game isn't on Tech's home court.

Still, the closest set of games in years is predicted. The Yellow Jacket club this year has a lot of talent and a lot of inexperience. And sophomores are always doing the unexpected—like knocking off a team they are not supposed to.

Both teams will play games before their traditional battle. Georgia goes to Augusta tonight to meet South Carolina, while Tech faces Auburn in Auburn Wednesday night.

Another capacity crowd, which has been the rule rather than the exception in Athens for two years, will see the battle.

It's a pretty good guess that Roy Mundorff is glad his team will be seeing the last of three lads who have caused the Jackets quite a bit of trouble in their careers at Georgia. They are Roy Chatham, Dan Kirkland and Joe Killian, who will be playing their next to last and their final home game against Tech.

Mundorff will start a lineup embracing three sophomores, Stevens, Blackwell and Hearn, and two juniors, Lewis and Johnson, against the Bulldogs. Lampe will sandwich a junior, Bobby Moore, and a soph, George Poschner or Bud Roland, in among his three seniors.

Incidentally, Roland may have taken charge of the open fifth position on Georgia's team because of his 15 points against Tennessee. But it's a safe bet Poschner will be in their lot because of his height and scrappy spirit.

Mailho, 'Sub' for Hamel, Batting .336 as Cracker

Outfielder Hit .306, His Worst Average as Cracker, in '38; Vaulted to .364 in '39.

By JACK TROY, Constitution Sports Editor.

There's a lot in that old saw about the "ill wind." An appendectomy performed on Peck Hamel in June, 1938, led to the Crackers obtaining Emil Pierre Mailho on option from Connie Mack.

Mailho broke into the Cracker lineup on June 10, 1938, and he has been with the Atlanta club ever since. It is possible that the Crackers might never have had Mailho except for Hamel's operation. When Peck submitted to a surgeon's knife, the Crackers had to have another outfielder right away. They had won their first pennant in 10 years in 1935, and they were leading the league again when Hamel fell out. The Crackers meant to repeat—regardless.

CAME DOWN ON OPTION.

Connie Mack, long an "angel" to the Atlanta club, sent Mailho to take Hamel's place. Mr. Mack hasn't seen the fiery Frenchman since. The Crackers exercised their option and bought Mailho at season's end.

It was a profitable purchase, as all Cracker fans know. In his five seasons with Atlanta, Mailho has a composite batting average of .336. And he has failed to appear in less than a dozen games. That's value plus.

Last year he wasn't far from the top in batting, with an average of .364. That mark represented his best year with Atlanta. In 1937 he batted .344.

Dewey Luster Named Coach At Oklahoma

Freshman Mentor 'Jap' Haskell Appointed Athletic Director.

NORMAN, Okla., Feb. 3.—(P)—Dewey "Snorter" Luster, former backfield coach at the University of Oklahoma, was named head coach of the Sooner football squad today by the board of regents.

Freshman Coach Lawrence "Jap" Haskell was named director of athletics.

Luster, a Sooner star of 20 years ago, succeeds Tom Stidham, who resigned recently to accept the head-coaching berth at Marquette University. Stidham also was director of athletics.

Challdon Is Fit; Due to Run Feb. 22

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 3.—(P)—Challdon, the 1940 handicap champion, looked like a fit horse today as he galloped six furlongs under the watchful eye of Trainer Don Cameron, and any doubt that W. L. Brann's color-bearer will start in the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap seems to have vanished.

Stetson Alumni To Gather Today

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 3.—(UP)—Stetson Alumni Association officials today were called to meet at Deland tomorrow at 5 p. m. to discuss abolishment of intercollegiate athletics.

E. Harris Drew, president of the association, said the action of college authorities in announcing interscholastic athletics would be abolished "came as a great surprise at this time."

Emory Tankmen Defeat Georgia

Emory swimmers defeated Georgia tankmen in the opening meet of the season for both teams yesterday at the Emory pool by 41-34.

With the score deadlocked at 34-all coming into the 400-yard free-style relay, final event of the program, Emory won first place and the meet.

Louis Harlan's 17 points topped Emory.

Louis To Battle Dorazio Feb. 17

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 3.—(P) Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis signed today for a 15-round defense of his title against Gus Dorazio, Philadelphia heavyweight, in Convention hall February 17.

At the same time, Promoter Mike Jacobs, who accompanied Louis here, announced that there "was a very good chance" that Louis would defend his title against Billy Conn next June at Pittsburgh instead of New York. Pittsburgh is Conn's home.

The Louis-Dorazio fight will be the first heavyweight title bout to be held in Philadelphia since the Tunney-Dempsey fight. Promoter Herman Taylor said he expects a gate of $60,000.

GABBY'S FATHER.

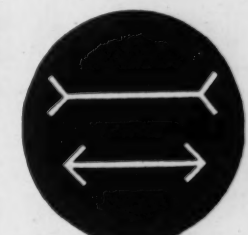

WOONSOCKET, R. I., Feb. 3.—(P)—Fred Hartnett, 58, father of Charles L. "Gabby" Hartnett, player coach of the New York Giants of the National Baseball League, died today at the Woonsocket hospital after a long illness.

Esme Asks Vivian If He Is Going To Divorce Jean and Marry Her.

SYNOPSIS.

Dazzled by Vivian Forrest's wealth and ardent love-making, Jean Selden marries him, although she has been in love with Brandon Sayre, an explorer. Before the first year has passed, she knows that he is implacably impervious and he makes no effort to keep her from her various love affairs. By the end of the second year, she detests him, but she must consider their baby, Florimel, as she has no means of supporting herself. She is naturally patient and Vivian is very proud of his beautiful wife. At times he shows that he loves her in his inconstant way, and he is extremely jealous. His invitation to Sayre to be a member of their house party at Forrest Fell on Long Island puzzles his half brother, Austin. Other guests are Ann Frasset and Suzy Kirk, and John Elman and Peter Haskell. All are fencing enthusiasts and are practicing for a club tournament to be held soon. Vivian is an expert and he has insisted upon a daily 15-minute practice with Jean, who has become very skillful with the foil. Little Florimel even comes in for his jealousy—he had wanted a boy—and he seems to take delight in calling Jean away from his half brother. When Sayre's arrival that her love for her is dead; in fact, she knows she has loved him every day he was away in the jungles. But she does not want to let all thoughts of her love; she is Vivian's wife. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

INSTALLMENT VI.

"Yes, she is clever! She completely spoiled my fun of sitting at the head of the table—I don't want to do it again. But I'm glad I came; I've made good friends of Austin and Peter and I never would have known them."

She smiled up at him as she lay in his arms, and her little finger tips caressed his cheek.

"My little love, my life, I can't stand it! We must go away together."

"No, we must stay here together. We can drive her out. I haven't begun yet to take a hand in the game."

"Don't talk like that! There must be no scandal. But you and I will go away by ourselves forever and forever."

"Would you like that? I would not! I want you, but I want this setting, too. We can get rid of Jean and live here forever and forever. But not if you're so half-hearted before people. They know you love me, or I wouldn't be here. Show your love a little more plainly in the house. I'll show you now how I love you, out here!"

"Oh, here you are!" called a gay voice, and Suzy with Peter Haskell appeared at the end of the pergola.

"Yes, we're just going back to the house," Vivian said.

"Well," said Suzy, thoughtfully, "I think you'd better. And don't go together. Viv, you come along with me, and let Esme follow with Peter."

The two in the armchair had risen, and so determined was Suzy's tone and so definite her grip on Vivian's arm, that he went with her.

"You're a naughty girl," Haskell said, looking at the mischievous beauty as she stood in a rose-wreathed opening in the pergola and the moonlight gave him full view of her laughing face.

"Don't scold!" she whispered; "everybody scolds me."

"And those who don't, want to," he returned, fully meaning to give her a jolt.

"Yes, I s'pose so. But why should they? I don't scold them. Oh, don't be cross to me, dear Peter."

"Give me one kiss, and I won't," said Peter, involuntarily.

"A dozen if you like. I think you are very nice."

Peter took his dozen and had just sense enough left to know they must go back to the house.

They did, and entered the gym, like two disinterested parties, each looking for some one else.

Esmeralda was in her element. Several attractive men to flirt with, thereby making one particular man furious, gave her real delight.

But just then no one noticed her much, for there was serious practice going on and the tournament was an important interest.

As a proper hostess, Jean couldn't see a guest neglected. She put down her foil and went over to Esmeralda.

"Talk to me," the hostess said; "they're all busy with their fencing arguments."

Jean and Esmeralda sat down together and the pretty movie actress said, "Do you mind having me here?"

"Not a bit in the world," her hostess replied. "You won't be here very long; Mr. Forrest is already wishing he hadn't asked you."

"How is a draftee's right to vote affected by the fact that he is away from home in training?"

The selective service law provides that any person inducted into the land or naval forces for training and service under the act shall, during the period of such training and service, be permitted to vote in person or by absentee ballot in any general, special or primary election occurring in the state of which he is a resident.

This applies whether he is within or outside of such state at the time of the election, if under the laws of that commonwealth he is entitled to vote in such election.

The law goes on to state that nothing in the subsection covering this subject shall be construed to require granting the trainee a leave of absence for longer than one day in order to permit him to vote in person in any election.

"What chance has a Communist to get my job while I am away in Army service?"

Congress has written into the selective service act its expressed policy that whenever a vacancy is caused in the employment rolls of

"Oh, I don't think that. Not until he tells me so himself."

"How pretty you are," Jean said, inattentively. "You're just like the dormouse."

"Dormouse?"

"Yes, in Christopher Robin, you know. Your eyes and lips are 'delfiniums' (blue) and geraniums (red)."

"What are delfiniums?"

"Larkspur. Now, will you carry on as hostess for tonight?"

"I will," said Esme, with almost a snap of her little white teeth.

"Are you wise?" asked Sayre, as he followed Jean from the room. "Jean, do you remember—"

"Brandon, never say anything to me beginning with 'Do you remember'."

"Bless your heart, dear, run along and see little Florimel."

The next morning Sayre was awakened by a sunbeam that fell across his face and caused him to open his eyes.

He had all sorts and conditions of weather in many and distant lands, and he told himself that the best place in the world was a country estate on Long Island, in July.

For a few moments he lay half-dreaming and then becoming fully awake, he jumped out of bed, flung on a dressing gown and sat at a wide window looking out at beautiful formal gardens surrounding an artificial lake.

After his long experience with natural jungles and rough, hard roads, he welcomed the sight of carefully kept scenery.

But his thoughts soon left the landscape and turned to the conditions he had discovered in the home he was visiting.

He had been incredulous at first, but the more he saw of Jean Forrest and her husband, the more he realized the fearful problems she had to face.

Sayre did not judge from surface effects; he studied deeply the surprising conditions until he realized the truth.

It was not only that Vivian's love for his wife had undergone a change; a deeper trouble lay in the fact that she still loved her.

Sayre knew Forrest well, and he knew that while he was capable of positive cruelty to Jean, he was passionately fond of her at times.

He knew of Vivian's women friends. He knew Esmeralda was only one of many, and he was amazed to find the girl in the Forrest home! How dare Forrest do such a brutal thing?

And that the more he saw of Jean, the more he realized the fearful problems she had to face.

And that the more he saw of Jean, the more he realized the fearful problems she had to face.

Well, the brute had received little satisfaction so far, but Sayre suddenly determined he should have some! Then he put the thought away. He mustn't involve Jean. He must be careful never to talk to her when Vivian was around. For Jean had an easily read countenance when she was deeply moved, and he felt, he couldn't help feeling, that her heart, broken by continued sorrows, was turning to him for rest and peace.

Ought he to go away? No! Should a man who had faced jungle beasts without a tremor run away from a bunch of human beings? Or even from the one human being who would have a right to challenge him?

He had only scorn in his soul for Vivian Forrest, but he must remember that Vivian was Jean's husband.

Then, must he feel he could do nothing—nothing at all to help the woman he loved?

Should he speak to Austin? No, he had no right to denounce Vivian to his brother.

Esmeralda? Ah! She could do nothing, and after all, she was only one of a dozen. Vivian's affairs were no secret.

Jean? No, he must not add to her cares, and he could see no way to lessen them.

To Vivian himself?

That was the only right and reasonable thing to do. The idea was most distasteful, but he dared not let things go on without an effort on his part.

The man sighed deeply as he rose and began to dress.

But his decision remained unchanged, and he went downstairs, waiting only to find out the best time to have a talk with his host.

He found, however, that Vivian had gone to New York and would not be back until afternoon.

"Come with me," Jean said, "to see the California poppies. They are wonderful this year."

The two walked away. There was a short silence.

Then she said, "Don't pity me, Brandon. I can't stand that."

"You dear, proud thing! My heart holds for you—only love."

"That won't do either!" She smiled at him. "There is nothing to be done. There is no way out."

"You wouldn't leave him?"

"I can't. He has feared I might, and he has told me if anything like that happened, he would keep the baby, and he would give me no money. I would brave the latter threat, for I might earn my living, but I cannot give up my child. I will suffer any indignities, put up with anything, rather than that."

"You don't love him, Jean?"

"No, I never did. He dazzled me with promises. He painted my life with him a perfect paradise; he vowed unending fidelity and a lifelong worship. But he is fickle by nature. He can't help it. I am not condoning; I am explaining. Even now, he has times of absolute adoration for me. Oh, I know. I cannot be deceived. At such times, I can make him promise anything I ask. And then he falls for a new siren, and forgets all else for her."

"A charmer like Esmeralda?"

"Yes, she is the type he worships. Not too highly educated, or feigned, but of great beauty and glamour. Why, Brandon, just think, when he told me about Esme, he said she was a woman of distinction and great culture."

DRAMA—A romantic adventure story by Anthony Wayne, "Interlude in Haiti," will be dramatized on the "First Nighter" program over WGST tonight at 7:30 o'clock. Les Tremayne and Barbara Luddy will handle the leading roles.

Lieutenant Bill Bohn (Les Tremayne) meets Jeanne Whitcomb (Barbara Luddy) on board a cruise ship headed for Haiti. It's love at first sight for the two voyagers, but a certain glib lady and a strange foreign gentleman intrude and bring about complications.

BATTLE—One of the most famous feuds of nineteenth century America will be belatedly resolved during the "Battle of the Sexes," when a group of modern day Hatfields face four contemporary McCoys. The program will be heard over WSB tonight at 8 o'clock.

Julia Sanderson and Frank Crumit will be on hand to keep the "feud" orderly.

FORTUNES—Rightful owners of unclaimed estates worth many thousands of dollars will be sought on the sixth consecutive broadcast of the "Court of Missing Heirs" to be heard over WGST tonight at 7 o'clock. Facts in the cases presented on the program are taken from the files of probate courts throughout the country.

SURVIVOR—Bennett B. Smith, or Largo, Fla., who served in the Ninth United States Infantry, based in the Philippine Islands in 1901, reveals his amazing experiences in escaping from rebel ambush when he appears on "We, the People" program to be heard over WGST tonight at 8 o'clock. Smith, along with three other soldiers, fled to a small island in a boat after being ambushed.

Baptists Refinance $850,000 Debt

Refinancing of a $850,000 indebtedness at an interest saving of more than 2 per cent was completed in Memphis yesterday by the Home Mission Board of the Southern Baptist convention.

Dr. J. B. Lawrence, executive secretary-treasurer, and Dr. Ellis A. Fuller, president of the Baptist Home Mission Board, signed the new indentures.

"The annual interest charge," said Dr. Lawrence, "is now only $28,817. On the old bonds it was $51,487.68."

Six series of bonds, Dr. Lawrence explained, totaling $766,000, are being issued at 3 1/4 per cent interest. The balance of the new indenture, he said, totaling $474,000, will bear a rate of 3 1/2 per cent.

Dr. Lawrence pointed out that the home mission board expects to meet all of its debts by 1945, the centennial year of the Southern Baptist Convention, so that the convention may reach its goal of a "Debtless Denomination by 1945."

Wider Powers Sought

For Attorney General

The general assembly was asked yesterday to grant Georgia's attorney general wide powers to investigate state affairs and institute civil and criminal actions where the state has been defrauded. It is sponsored by Representative Amall, of Coweta.

Under existing law, the attorney general may undertake legal action only at the request of the Governor, or in collaboration with solicitors general.

Your Horoscope for Today

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Astrologist.

What today means to you if you were born between:

March 21st and April 19th (ARIES)—Before 1:30 p. m. holds conservative influences, favoring affairs of a substantial nature, getting at things in a positive way and finishing work that has been dragging. After 1:30 p. m. radical changes or departures from ordinary procedure should be guarded against.

April 20th and May 20th (TAURUS). Some adjustments will have to be made before 12:04 noon, for it will be easy to go to extremes of action. If calmness and peace are maintained, it will be a favorable period for work that requires quickness of action, otherwise antagonisms may abound.

May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI)—Opportunities for closer companionship with others will be felt in many ways throughout the day. The entire day and evening favors financial matters, dealings with professional people.

June 21st and July 22nd (CANCER)—Throughout the entire day and until 7 p. m. is not a favorable time for asking favors, especially the seeking of a raise. Previous to 6:45 a. m. suggests caution in travel. After 7 p. m. favors social and domestic relations.

July 23rd and August 22nd (LEO)—The entire day favors new plans and projects. An excellent day to start new plans that have been carefully thought out.

August 23rd and September 22nd (VIRGO)—Before 1:38 p. m. but especially between 7:38 a. m. and 1:38 p. m. you can be as active as you desire, for you will not only encounter people with engaging personalities, but you will be filled with high aspirations that have a substantial basis. An excellent period for social matters and works of beauty. After 1:38 p. m. avoid risky ventures.

September 23rd and October 22nd (LIBRA)—The period previous to 2:35 p. m. favors dealings in real estate and matters that have already been started. After 2:35 p. m. a feeling of nervousness may predominate. The period suggests sticking to routine matters.

October 23rd and November 21st (SCORPIO)—The predominant influences for the day suggest attention to your health and being cautious and moderate in all that you undertake. After 1:31 p. m. efforts should meet with favorable results and you are likely to meet generosity and understanding in conferences, dealing with relatives and while traveling.

November 22nd and December 21st (SAGITTARIUS)—The entire day favors new and important undertakings. You may have opportunities to accomplish something towards your highest ideals today and until 10:42 p. m. good will and co-operation should be more easily attained.

December 22nd and January 19th (CAPRICORN)—Previous to 1:31 p. m. is a very busy and active period, favoring conservative work, dealings with state and mature people, literary efforts, tackling hard jobs and putting into effect those things that require time. After 1:31 p. m. does not especially favor new beginnings. A good time to stick to routine.

January 20th and February 18th (AQUARIUS)—Your energies and ambitions will be strong today and you will be very active in the pursuit of a constructive nature. Changes and developments meet with co-operation from others and aggressive action on your part will be rewarded. The day favors general business activities, social and domestic matters.

February 19th and March 20th (PISCES)—This is a most auspicious day to improve conditions around you and to undertake work of a constructive nature. Changes and developments meet with co-operation from others and aggressive action on your part will be rewarded. The day favors general business activities, social and domestic matters.
